We pray that the memory of his broad minded, large hearted life may be a source of comfort and consolation to his widow, his sons and daughters, his relatives, and many friends.
We pray that this Senate, generous in their tribute of respect to their late colleague, may enjoy in great abundance with their families the richest blessings of Divine guidance and favor. These blessings we ask in our Saviour's name. Amen.

RESOLUTION ON THE DEATH OF HONORABLE JAMES P. MCNICHOL, LATE SENATOR FROM THE THIRD DISTRICT.

Mr. VARE offered the following resolution, which was twice read:

Whereas, Our fellow Senator and esteemed friend, the Honorable James P. McNichol of the third district of Philadelphia County has passed into eternal rest; and
Whereas, His character and his long and continuous public services demand special commemoration; therefore be it
Resolved, That the Senate of Pennsylvania hereby records its testimony of our late associate as a citizen, a legislator and a man;
Resolved, That in the death of the Honorable James P. McNichol the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has lost a man of courage, public spirit, superior natural ability and great honor, one whose service was of the first order; the city of Philadelphia, in which he resided and which he loved almost with a reverence, has by his death been deprived of a substantial citizen, one who by enterprise and forcefulness in the development and conduct of operations and industries did much to upbuild that wonderful city; the Senate of Pennsylvania, through his death, sustains an irreparable loss, for we here were, peculiarly, in position to realize the worth of the man, his value to the Commonwealth in striving to attain that which might benefit the masses, his counsel as a trustworthy and unselfish friend and adviser and his zeal to ever uphold the best traditions of this law-making body;
Resolved, That we tender to the family of the late Honorable James P. McNichol our heart felt sympathy in their great loss, and direct that a copy of these resolutions, duly engrossed and attested, be forwarded to the members of the bereaved family of the deceased.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

Mr. VARE. Mr. President, and gentlemen of the Senate: In offering the resolution we are now considering, I offered it not only because of precedent but for the high regard and respect in which I hold our deceased colleague, the late Senator James P. McNichol.
He and I had been in close touch in different ways for upwards of thirty years. Our summer homes were directly opposite each other, on States Avenue, Atlantic City, for a long time. Our children were raised in these two homes, not more than one hundred feet apart. He and I had been personal and business friends all these many years. When I was in any serious business difficulty he always came to me with his help and gave me the best that was in him, and I always tried to do likewise for him. We did not always agree politically, however, and went through hard contests on opposite sides, but it never separated our personal friendship. That is where I had an opportunity to see the real friendship and splendid manhood in his makeup.
When late in the afternoon of September 15, 1917, James P. McNichol was overtaken by illness on the train on the way to his home in Atlantic City, and he was tenderly carried to the home of his son, our present Senator, 1637 Race Street, Philadelphia, there began a battle for life that excited the admiration of all, and when on the morning of November 14, 1917, death touched his forehead and summoned his spirit to the great beyond, a great heart cry went up from the Philadelphia that knew him best and great grief was manifested in every nook and corner of our State, whose people had seen, felt and known this illustrious son of Pennsylvania.
I stood at the portals of the great cathedral where all through his life he had found refuge from the cares, and strifes of business, and politics, there to pour out his soul to his creator, and as I saw that great throng of men, women and children I realized what I had always known, the tremendous hold that this splendid man had on the people. None were too rich to pay him homage, none too poor to speak of his good qualities.
The day that tender hands bore his casket away and his remains were being followed by his family, his stalwart sons and countless admirers and friends, that was his day of victory. The trials of life were over, all struggles had ceased. The hostile newspapers were singing his praises; no harsh note was heard. James P. McNichol, the man, stood out in bold relief and for the first time since the date of his birth the public looked upon him at the right angle and with proper appreciation.
It did not require his death to bring before me his strong characteristics. Bonds of personal friendship had always held us in close contact. We always conceded each to the other the perfect right of freedom of action politically. This individual liberty conceded each only strengthened our personal friendship and each respected the other for his individual views.
He was a Philadelphian in every sense of the word. Born on July 3, 1864, he was reared in the Tenth Ward. His father and uncles were contractors. He was educated in our public schools and finished in a business college. He entered the contracting business early in life. He stood for Philadlphia, and as an organizer of men he had no superior. As a business man he could handle a vast volume of business as easily as ordinary men the more trifling affairs. He gloried in contest. He was at his best when in the midst of one. His personality has often been in review in the height of his career. Newspaper men regarded him as a marvel of energy and mental equipment. The average man when in touch with the late Senator could not appreciate how he could handle a business employing from seven to ten thousand men, keep in mind all the various details of politics of a great city, and at the same time maintain that calm and pleasant demeanor towards all about him and spend a great portion of his time in the very bosom of his family.

Senator McNichol as a Republican leader had most marked ability and as a business man was extraordinarily sagacious and competent. Nevertheless, where he showed the most brilliantly was in the quiet circle of his own family. Above and beyond everything else James P. McNichol was a family man; he was a patriot. When he stood with tears in his eyes watching four manly sons go out to enter the service of his country, he offered the greatest sacrifice upon his country's altar that any father could. He saw them go to war and still he smiled.

Senator McNichol won his greatest vindication years before his death, when he emerged from a political campaign that had been fought about his contracts a victor in a court of justice and entirely vindicated by public opinion. He had been charged with many wrongs by cruel political detractors. How after a year and more has passed since he was laid away in his last resting place, no word is raised against him. The mention of his name brings up pleasant memories. The real Senator McNichol is now being seen and talked about. Every one realizes that his home city and state, as well as the nation, have lost a great man. His form and smile have been missed not only in this Senate but everywhere.

The churches, the charity organizations and the poor and needy have lost a liberal contributor. His rich judgment and wide experience were of great help to his colleagues here in his chamber, and it is befitting that after the calm judgment of the people has established a firm place in public affection and in popular estimation for our good friend, that we Senators of Pennsylvania, his closest colleagues, pay a deserved tribute to his memory. He was a good christian, a splendid husband and father, a true friend.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair presents his Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth.

GOVERNOR SPROUL. Mr. President, family and friends of Senator McNichol: I have not come over here today to make a prepared address, nor to make a special eulogy upon our departed Senator, but I have come as a friend to talk to other friends about a very dear friend to us all. This is rather a remarkable occasion. As I have been sitting here I have been wondering whether ever before within the recollection of any of us has such a gathering assembled to do honor to the memory of a man whose spirit went away year before last. In these changing times when events of great importance follow one another like shadows across the fields, the memory of events is not long lived and it is a great tribute to our departed friend today that so many of his old friends have come a great distance to do him the honor after months and months and months have passed away. I am glad to be over here, to be in this room where he and I had long associations and where a great many of the associations which I know that he prized most, and which I am sure that I prized most among all the things of my life, have transpired. But he was a pretty remarkable character, friends. I have had a good bit of acquaintances in my life. I have known a great many people in a moderately active career, and among all of those there are a few who stand out because of a special characteristic, and if I shall live to be a thousand years old, James P. McNichol will stand out prominently in my memory as a man. That was his outstanding qualification. He was a man in all that the word implied, strong, courageous, able to give battle, able to forgive, self reliant, but merciful, combatant when combat was required, but oh so kindly; strong in his affections, but quick to forgive. He combined in his life a great many of those qualified, which men most prize in other men. Some one was telling me the other day about an incident that happened over in France a few months ago when a regiment which was just about going into battle again and been ordered up to the first line and was waiting for the details to be arranged when some student of human nature thought that he would try the mental attitude of these boys; they were Americans; try the mental attitude of them regarding human conditions. They had been sorely battered in days gone by and were expecting more of it. They knew not where they were going or what was to be their fate. So the judgment to which they gave expression may be taken as the judgment of their lots. They were asked to indicate by a ballot their view of the three great sins, the three cardinal sins, not religious sins, but the three cardinal sins of manhood. Nearly all of them expressed an opinion and one of the social students who was interested in the matter took account of stock and counted up these things and he found that over ninety per cent. of these young fellows who were going out perhaps to lay their lives down, put down cowardice as being the first cardinal sin. The next largest number of ballots, and about eighty-five per cent. indicated selfishness, and over seventy per cent. of those young fellows indicated conceit as their view as one of the three. There we have them, cowardice, selfishness and conceit, the three worst of human frailties as indicated in the minds of real, manly men. When I learned of that I thought of Jim McNichol and I thought, "my goodness, how free that character was of any of those weaknesses" and how free he was! Cowardice, why he didn't know what fear was. Not physical fear, but other fear, and those of us who have been helped up, who have been pilloried to the public gaze who have been helped up and our weaknesses displayed to those who pose in politics or otherwise, know that no physical torture perhaps is greater than the fear of that kind among those who have fear. No one, who many of us know, has been the victim of much more of that kind of punishment than had Senator McNichol, and yet he never feared it and never flinched from it. He never cared a continental when he thought he was doing the right thing, serving the public interests, serving the city he loved so well, or serving his friends, to whom he gave so much, he did not care what anybody said or wrote about him. And selfishness, what that man didn't know what selfishness was. Perhaps he might have been a greater political character had he been more selfish at times. I have seen so many examples upon it right down upon this floor, and in committee rooms and elsewhere and in his office in Philadelphia and a thousand and one other places where I met him in our long and intimate associations that I know that the thought of selfishness never entered that man's mind. The spirit of selfishness never found a moment's refuge in his soul. I remember one time there was a gentleman here in Harrisburg who had done Senator McNichol a grevious wrong; had played upon him one of the meanest tricks you might call it that one man could act towards another. Senator McNichol was mad about it. His indignation and anger was righteous and he came to me and said "Bill, I think I ought to do something to that fellow; I think I ought to put him out of the place that he is in so that he would not be able to do things of that kind again." I did not see him until the following week. I said "Jim, how about so and so." "Forget it Bill." I said "What is the matter." He said, "Well I was to the theater the other night and he was there with his wife and three little children," and he said "I couldn't do anything to hurt that man or those people." He said "Forget all about it." That was only one instance of a hundred things if I would ever have made notes of them that I might put down to his credit. Perhaps he may have been a greater political general if he had been more selfish; if he had been more cruel or more inconsiderate of other people's feelings, but my goodness, how much better it is now for him and for all of us who cherish his memory to think of him than if he had erred and leaned the other way. And conceit, self esteem, that was another element that never entered into his being. In a position of great prominence he never forgot his humble origin, and the older Senators here will remember that day, maybe it is ten years ago, when he stood up here at a committee hearing and told the story of his bringing up and of the struggles which his father and mother had and of the time they all had to make both ends meet and raise a large family and how he had gone through it all, how he gloried in it and liked to talk about it, and how he made the expression "I can eat strawberries now in February, but I have not forgotten the day when I could not." He never walked in his life along the gold ridges, where he might be seen and be prominent, but he kept himself down in the valleys where the flowers of life bloom and the streams ran warm and the great current of human life go by, and he mixed among the people that he loved, and for that reason he was their leader. His optomism was the most remarkable attribute almost that I ever saw in any man. I remember those days that Senator Vare alludes to when he was beset in all directions and was the victim of unjust and malignant prosecutions, attacked upon all sides and he must have been unhappy in his heart, but if you met him in those days on Broad street or around his office or anywhere you went, you would not have believed it. He kept his trouble to himself even in the last days. In those two months, from the 15th of September to the 14th of November, after he had been stricken and when death's land was upon him, I do not believe that he ever for a moment realized that the pale horse stood before his door. I do not believe that he had any other idea than that he would get back and continue in service and continue in his trust of those about him. His trustfulness was marvelous. His trustfulness was almost as great as his forgiveness and I can remember many and many a time when he had been obviously the victim of treachery and of deceit and had been imposed upon by those about him whom he had trusted, that he would pass the thing over and say "Oh well, there was a reason for that, they will come back after while, we will all be together again. Bill, do not take these political differences too seriously, they don't last long; those are good fellows too." As I say, when the pale horse stood before his door, and you remember that rhyme of John Hayes:

> My short and happy day is done,
> The dark, uncertain night comes on
> Before my door the pale horse stands
> To bear me away to unknown lands,
> His whinney shrill, his pawing hoof,
> Sounds dreadful as the gathering storm,
> And I must leave this sheltering roof,
> And the joys of life so soft and warm,
> Tender and warm the joys of life
> Kind friends, the faithful and the true,
> My rosy children and my wife,
> So sweet to kiss, so fair to view,
> But the night comes on, the lamp burns blue,
> And before my door the pale horse stands,
> To bear me away to unknown lands.

I remember, probably ten years ago, when we met here to pay tribute to the memory of a young Senator who had been very active in this body, that I recited that verse of John Hayes, and Senator McNichol came and asked me for it. The reason that I allude to it is because he wrote it down and put it away, and yet as I say, I do not believe that he ever realized in his optimism that the pale horse was before his door in those weeks and weeks of pain and trouble. His devotion to his friends I have spoken of, and his devotion to his family was the finest thing about that fine character. I had talked a great deal with him and visited a great deal with him. We had a great many things in common, had been through a great many crisis and his talk about his boys and girls, his wife and his family was always phrased in the sweetest language and most expressive language that a man might use. I remember a good many years ago when his boy, one of his soldier boys, was captain of the basketball team of the University of Pennsylvania, and my boy was captain of the Swarthmore College basketball team, and they met one another in real contest, because they were pretty well matched. The delight with which the Senator looked at me when these husky lads would meet each other as captains of their teams and briefly bow and address each other as Senator So and So, and then start in clouting one another in a thoroughly earnest way. He said "Bill, they are fine boys, look at the bunch looking at them." The pride was in his heart and his devotion to that family was with him when his spirit passed away. I could not help but think when we were in the great Cathedral, when the last rites of his church were being exercised over him the feeling that was in my heart when those big boys of his gathered the mortal remains of their father up and carried them out, and I could not help but think what was in his heart, in his spirit, wherever it might be as he contemplated the spectacle there, and the thought came to me how true were the words of Tennyson:

> "Howe'er it be, it seems to me, 'tis only noble to be good,
> Kind hearts are more than coronets,
> And simple faith than Norman blood."

And going through all his career and through all the memories, as I have said, his whole career, his whole character, may be summed up in a single word—man. There is nothing else that can express it so well, nothing else I believe would appeal to his friends more completely.

In conclusion, in thinking of all these things one cannot help but feel as Thomas Moore said:

> "Long, long may my heart with such memories be filled
> As the case in which roses have once been distilled,
> You may break it, you may shatter the vase if you will,
> But the scent of the roses will cling around it still."

The PRESIDENT. I present the long-time colleague and close, warm, personal friend of Senator McNichol, Auditor General Charles A. Snyder.

Mr. SNYDER. Mr. President: We meet here today to pay a tribute of respect to the memory of one who was for many years an honored member of this Senate. It is a solemn occasion, but the people assembled, the time and the place, are all in accord. Senator McNichol contributed much toward making this stately hall a reality, and here he attained the highest point of his notable career. The time that has elapsed since his untimely death has given the public a clearer vision of his real character and work. To many who are present he was a personal friend. And it is in recognition of Senator McNichol's worth as a man, his loyalty as a friend, and his ability as an associate and leader in the affairs of the State, that we offer on the altar of friendship, this public tribute of love and esteem.

During his life-time, Senator McNichol was often misjudged. But as a building perfectly planned must be viewed from a certain perspective in order that the beauty and purpose of the parts in the architect's design, as well as the harmony of the complete structure, may be discerned; so the character and work of a public man, especially one of an uncommon mold, are seen in a better light when viewed at some distance from his living presence. In the presence of death, men judge as they would be judged. The lapse of time softens the harsh outlines of contemporary criticism. The rivalries and passions by which envy so often hides the real worth of men are soon forgotten when the grave closes over them. Time dissolves prejudices and clarifies vision, and with the passing years and abiding elements of a man's character and work stand out in truer light. We believe that this will prove true in the case of our departed friend.

To Senator McNichol's more intimate associates, such distance was never necessary, because by nature he was one of the most genial and companionable of men. Rather, as the fragrance of a flower and its distinctive characteristics are enjoyed only in close contact, so his sterling worth was appreciated all the more within the circle of personal friendship, for he had a rare genius for friendships. From the "table of my memory" the golden chalice of remembrance will ever distil tender thoughts of him and inspire kindlier service to all my fellow farers through life. To me he was a staunch friend and kind mentor: to all who knew him well he was a warm, living, forceful personality. This it was that advanced him in a comparatively short period to the position of a trusted leader. It has been well said that his was a many-sided character, in which were blended the domestic virtues, high executive ability and marked political sagacity. Withal he was a generous and mirth-loving spirit, without vice of any kind. Wealth and station were sought by him, but more for what he could do thereby for others than for his personal benefit. He made much money, but spent on himself and family only enough to live in refined comfort. With the rest he was the very almoner of charity to many. His unnumbered benefactions are recorded only in that Book where long since besides his name had been written, "One who loves his fellow-men."

James P. McNichol was born in Philadelphia, July third, 1864, toward the close of the Civil War. He died November fourteenth, 1917, near the close of the World War. The story of his career within this short period is a striking commentary on the possibilities of American citizenship, and is an eloquent refutation of class advantage in our form of government; while the progress of our country during the same half-century suggests still greater achievements in the coming years for the Nation and the individual, and that America is still another word for opportunity. The coming years, will offer opportunity to a larger number who may share in the country's advantages for human welfare and happiness; but there will still be need for men like Senator McNichol, who have the vision, and who can take the venture to do large things.

Decendant of an Irish exile, he was not helped by accident or luck, by wealth or powerful friends. He had a grammar-school education and graduated from a business college. He then started out for himself, and proved that only through struggle are strong men made. The first political appointment that he received was a janitorship in the old City Hall, with a salary of five hundred dollars. There he learned the ways of city politics and gained the attention and friendship of public men of the time. Charles A. Porter, a municipal contractor, gave him a chance at a small street-paving contract. He and a brother pooled their interests,—three carts and two horses represented their total resources. They made a good job and gained a reputation.

James McNichol was then twenty-six years old. It has been aptly said that he shaped his political harness when he launched his aspirations as a contractor, backed by a little more than a thousand dollars in cash, a knowledge of street paving, a courage born of the enthusiasm of youth and the determination to win, and a smile that never changed. This last was the spark in his disposition that won for him the name "Sunny Jim." By that smile he won his way from the obscurity of the grammar-school boy to the central figure in the political affairs of his native city and state. And when the summons came, true to his name and nature, he passed into eternity with a smile upon his lips.

Self-reliant, courageous and optimistic, he successfully engaged in some of the largest business undertakings in the large cities, having at periods as many as seven thousand men in his employ. At the same time he was an active participant in the public affairs of Philadelphia, and whether in private business or public service, he always gave his best. At the age of twenty-eight he was sent to the City Committee, the acknowledged leader of his district; a few years later he became a member of City Council; and at the age of thirty-eight he was elected from the third district of Philadelphia to the State Senate. With the activities of business and public life, he found time for considerable reading and study, and his knowledge of municipal, state and general affairs was varied and exact. Thus within a decade he advanced himself to a position where he was counted a leader among the men who conducted the business and public affairs of the great city of Philadelphia and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

His business record alone would stamp him as a man of extraordinary ability and is the best evidence that he was respected by those who employed him and his contracting companies in large construction undertakings. Many public-spirited citizens of Philadelphia remember gratefully his unstinted assistance given in carrying through the Council measures which made for the material and social welfare of the city. The educational institutions of Philadelphia, from the primary public schools to the pride of the city, the University of Philadelphia, had no more loyal supporter than Senator McNichol. It is also to his honor that a number of measures which made for the public welfare became embodied in the laws of the State largely because of his aid. Laws in behalf of child welfare and against the sale of narcotics and many others of great benefit to the Commonwealth could not have been passed otherwise, because of the interests that were opposed.

It were unfair to leave the impression that Senator McNichol's career was flawless or that the escaped criticism and censure. He had his faults, he made mistakes, he made enemies. But his chief offence was that he was eminently successful in politics. Hardly any man can seek a place in the public service without incurring a certain amount of odium. A forceful man like Senator McNichol is almost sure to provoke opposition, as he did, to the point of being reviled. It is an evil portend in our body politic, for the State must have citizens to act as administrators of the public affairs, as guardians of the public honor, as preservers of the public peace. This is but the simplest truism. The theory of our republic is that all rule, but that the fittest shall be chosen to govern; and too often those best fitted shrink from the task, for fear of unjust criticism. Those who have only adverse or destructive criticism for men in public office should examine themselves and give at least some evidence that they could do better.

Our Government is based on Nature's decree that man is pre-eminently a social or political creature, and, therefore, politics in its true sense is his highset vocation. Politics should be simply good citizenship. The habit prevalent, especially among highly educated persons, or regarding all men who are much in politics with suspicion, is to be deplored. If wealth, education and breeding were to result in a class who cared only to criticize, accumulate money and give way to self-indulgence, then it would appear indeed that there is a radical unsoundness in our society; refinement would prove to be a weakness and the higher education a curse. The men to whom the accidents of birth and fortune have given most owe most to their country. They ought to take up politics as any other business, and honor and elevate it. Among the finest things of this war is the part taken by thousands of men of wealth and education, and the sacrifices they made in many cases the supreme one. No better omen could be wished for our country than to see the same type of men take a similar part in civil life.

The American Republic is conceded to have the most humane system of government in the world, and yet the poet's plaint is perennial and holds ever:

> "Alas! for the poor to have some part
> In these sweet living lands of art
> Makes problems for both head and heart."

Perhaps the final touchstone for all the legislation planned by our statesmen in this so-called time of reconstruction is this: To what extent will it help to bring about the division of labor and the distribution of the wealth of our country in such a way that the poet's ideal: "Joy in widest commonalty spread," may be realized?

In this respect we can take special pride in our own State. From its founding as a colony, long before there was a Nation, those humane principles were put into practice and nurtured here as in no other part of the world. They became the very fibre of its laws, and were potent in shaping and determining those of other States. Our Commonwealth, with its widely diffused prosperity and happiness, is heir to the genius and nobility of its founder; but that heritage has been preserved and augmented from generation to generation by men who gave devoted service to the State in practicaly ways as did he in whose memory we are assembled. Senator McNichol was not a great orator or a great stateman; but his speeches had a pith, a brevity and a directness that went to the heart of public questions. And, just as his vocation consisted in doing construction work, so also it will be found on examination that in his avocation of politics he was always practical and constructive.

Senator McNichol was a Republican. He was a party man. He believed in the Republican Party, which was in its infancy when he himself was born and under whose rule so many great problems of the Republic have been solved. He believed that the party of Lincoln, of Grant and of McKinley was identified with the proudest and most prosperous years of the Republic. It is not strange, therefore, that the big-brained, stout-hearted, intensely earnest and resourceful Roosevelt was one of his heroes. For Senator McNichol himself, like his hero, was a man of action and courage, and never so self-possessed as when under fire. In his first political venture, he lost, but out of that defeat, he built the way to victory in later attempts.

It is not unfitting to recall some of the estimates of distinguished fellow-citizens who knew him best. An Ex-Governor of Pennsylvania said: "Senator McNichol was a trustworthy and courageous man, of great energy and marked ability."

The president of one of the largest universities said: "He was a man of remarkable brain power, and I admired him immensely for his invariable square-dealing and public-spiritedness."

Perhaps his strongest political opponent said of him: "Had my deepest respect for his courage, devotion to friends, manliness, and many deeds of charity."

A former Attorney-General of Pennsylvania said: "His grasp and understanding of state affairs and municipal problems generally, affecting our welfare and progress, was extraordinary."

No review of the life of our friend and colleague would be adequate without special reference to his loyalty, next to his buoyant spirit, the chief characteristic of his life. He was loyal to his home, to his city, to his State, and to his country and his friends. His home life was beautiful and exemplary. He was a devoted husband and loving father. He had great pride in his native city, which contains lasting monuments of his genius and industry, such as the Northeast Boulevard, the Market Street Subway, and the Torresdale Filtration Plant.

"He loved the romance of the city's mart,
The charm and magic of its throbbing heart."

The welfare of Philadelphia—his home city—was as much upon his mind as his private business, and he wished to see the city expand and become the greatest municipality in the country. When the war broke over the Nation he supported every patriotic project as he was able, and gave three sons to the army. They were all in army camps when he died.

In his last illness he had the sympathy of hundreds, and at his death, working men in frayed, soiled clothes who looked upon him as a benefactor, with others reflecting prosperity, called at his home to express the sense of their loss. And the great gathering of men distinguished in public and private life at his funeral, and the thronging thousands who followed the procession from the Cathedral, where he had always worshipped, to the Holy Sepulchre Cemetery, all bore witness to his domestic virtues, his business ability, and his useful public life. Such, also, is the meaning of this memorial, testified to by so large a gathering of his friends for

"To live in hearts we leave behind
Is not to die."

Mr. SONES. Mr. President; Representing the membership of this body on the maunder side I rise not only to offer a tribute to the memory of Senator James P. McNichol in behalf of my colleagues, but also a personal one, personal in that the Senator was a very close and dear friend, a friend whose friendship knew no politics, and whose companionship I enjoyed since I first entered on my duties in this body.

Much has been said of those qualities that endeared him to all but it was loyalty to friends that was the outstanding feature of his busy and varied life, a feature which helped in no small measure to endow him with that strong and radiant personality, so well known to everyone.

He was an opponent worthy of any man's steel, yet he conducted his fights in the open and friend and foe alike always knew where he stood. This policy earned for him the respect of all and it may be truly said that much of the political structure of his life was built on a foundation of square-dealing.

We were many times accorded his favor and support for our bills, for the lack of which those measures would in many cases be but memories and regrets. The people of a great many senatorial districts of this state are today enjoying the benefit of good and wise legislation very few of whom knew what power was exercised in order that those laws might be written on the statute books.

The thoughts and plans of Senator McNichol were not confined to a narrow area but his broad minded vision was a characteristic of his life, an inspiration to us all. His loss is not only the loss of the majority of this body, but the loss of the Pennsylvania State Senate and to me the passing into the great beyond of a dear and true friend.

Mr. DAIX. Mr. President, and gentlemen of the Senate, in the days of the Civil strife, and on the eve of the Great National Holiday celebrated in the hour of our Independence there was born on July 3, 1864, to a poor Irish-American family, a child, who was destined in course of time to wear a crown greater than any king.

It is in memory of him born this coming November, 55 years ago, we hold this memorial service to-day.

One who by his own exertion and by tremendous will power forced his way to the front as a leader of men. Starting his political life as a janitor in the old City Hall, Fifth and Chestnut Streets and in a business way as a contractor owning a few carts, and a couple of teams. Gradually advancing, being elected to Councils, and elected to the Senate in 1904, 1908, 1912, 1916, and at the same time advancing in his business, to the head of one of the largest contracting firms in the Country. He fought his battles in the political arena fair, and in the dark days of 1905. When enemies hounded him, and so called friends deserted him, he fought bravely on as a Christian man, placing his faith in God Almighty to lead him on the road to brighter days. Did they come? Yes. And it was to her through the Will of Divine Providence, hope came into his life again. The story from his own lips is: "I went home one night with heavy steps and heavier heart. When I went in, I just sat on a chair in the hall without taking off my hat. I was as near to being beaten, as I ever was in my life. My wife came down stairs. Then I felt her hand on my head. "Jim," she said, "I always feared it would come to this, so I saved the money you gave me for myself. Here it is, all for you. Use it, and win." Bank book showed Seventy Thousand Dollars. And he won."

He was a Christian and a moral man, with friends in every walk of life, not alone in Philadelphia, or this great Commonwealth, but throughout this Nation of ours. He was loved by every one. And why? The answer. He never betrayed a friend. And any other reason? He was Human. For example a story is related of him, that a certain party called upon him, a political foe, and made a request for money, stating his family were in want. Our late friend responded to the request to the apparent surprise of those around him. His answer to their astonishment, "I never stop to ask a man his politics when he is starving."

And then almost in the prime of his life, the call came to him, on November 17, 1917. Ingratitude had done its work. Mourned by thousands, rich and poor, political friend and foe, by the denizens of the Tenderloin, all loved the man who scattered sunshine and money along their pathways of life.

May I read a poem, that typifies the man?

I only ask there be engraven,
On every heart, and every mind
Of all with whom I've mingled
Those simple words, "He was always kind."
In the race for honors victory
Or in the race for fame.
He never crushed his fellowman
That he might win the game.

He was laid away with all the pomp, and splendor of his Church, surrounded by representative men of the Nation, State, and City. The man with a million friends. A Senator, who was to us "Our Sunny Jim." The "Ave Marie" has been played and Good-night has been said, and only the last farewell remains.

On last Sunday, I stood with my wife at the entrance to the mausoleum of him we mourn today, the late Senator James P. McNichol. I did not care if the earth was damp, or that rain drops now and then spattered down, I only thought of him. Twilight coming, a rift of sunshine comes into the gloom. I grasp the iron cornice work, and looking through the glass door with mist in my eyes, I exclaim, "Oh Jim would to God you could come back again." But my only answer was the bleak March winds, blowing mournfully through the trees. I have said my Farewell to "Sunny Jim" but as long as memory lasts, the memory of your friend and mine, the late James P. McNichol, will remain forever.

And the question rec

VETO OF SENATE BILL NO. 121.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Executive Chamber, Harrisburg, March 11, 1919.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Gentlemen: I herewith return, without my approval, Senate Bill No. 121, entitled "An Act authorizing Kathryn A. Seth, widow of James V. Seth, deceased, late of the city of Oil City, Venango County, Pennsylvania, to bring suit in the Court of Common Pleas of Venango County against the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania."

This bill authorizes a suit for damages for the death of James V. Seth, caused by an accident on a State Highway in Venango County.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has very recently declared the Act of May 10, 1917, P. L. 159, which authorizes Ida Collins to bring suit for the death of her husband, occurring on the State Highway in Somerset County, to be unconstitutional, special legislation. Moreover, I believe that actions against the State should be tried in the Court of Dauphin County, in accordance with previous practice and policy.

For this reason the bill is not approved.

O Thou who art always the same, yesterday, today and forever, Thou who hast seen the nations in their sunrise and in their sunset: Thou who hast seen the great catastrophe that has overtaken the world and even now has thrown it into the throes that mean a new birth and, we hope, the dawning of a better day, grant, we pray Thee, O Thou great God, that we may play a part in that new era as a nation and as a state that shall be both good and true. Amid the deluge of novelty and notion, grant that all that the past has given unto us, that has been tested by time and is true, may be held securely and be kept for future generations. Bless Thou this body and grant unto them the courage and conviction to do larger and better things as the day shall come forth and call for greater deeds and for higher living. Amen.

NAYS—0.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 218, entitled:

An Act adopting an official State song for the Commonwealth.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. BIDELSPACHER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the sponsor of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lackawanna, (Mr. David F. Davis), permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DAVID F. DAVIS. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BIDELSPACHER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman if he is familiar with the music composed for the rendition of this proposed State song.

Mr. DAVID F. DAVIS. I am. I have a copy of the music right here.

Mr. BIDELSPACHER. Is the tune original, or is it an adaption of an old familiar tune?

Mr. DAVID F. DAVIS. It is an original tune.

Mr. BIDELSPACHER. Has public sentiment crystalized in favor of this particular song being adopted as the State song?

Mr. DAVID F. DAVIS. Decidedly so.

Mr. BIDELSPACHER. How did you measure that public sentiment?

Mr. DAVID F. DAVIS. From the educators of the State, men coming in contact with the schools of the State.

Mr. BIDELSPACHER. Did any special convention of educators pass favorably upon this bill?

Mr. DAVID F. DAVIS. I did not hear your question.

Mr. BIDELSPACHER. Did any special convention of educators consider this bill and vote for its adoption?

Mr. DAVID F. DAVIS. Not to my knowledge.

Mr. PALMER. Mr. Speaker. I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lackawanna, (Mr. David F. Davis).

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lackawanna, (Mr. David F. Davis), permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DAVID F. DAVIS. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. PALMER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman if the assessors of Lackawanna County had anything to do with the preparation of this bill?

Mr. DAVID F. DAVIS. Not in any way.

Mr. PALMER. Does this take away from the people the right to sing any song they please?

Mr. DAVID F. DAVIS. It does not.

Mr. PALMER. Then it is a good bill.

Mr. GOLDER. Mr. Speaker, this is an important bill on a most important matter. While it is often said that music "hath charms to sooth the savage beast," sometimes the effect is quite the opposite, and I wonder, sir, whether the sponsor of this bill would have any objection to having it referred to the House choir,—to Choirmaster Phillips—and they could report here next Monday night at 9 o'clock, and sing the song.

Mr. BOLARD. Mr. Speaker, from what little conversation I have had with the members in this corner of the House, they never discovered that such a bill was in the House or knew anything about the bill for a State song until we came into the Legislature and heard of it. I do not think that it should be passed upon in this Legislature until it has been thoroughly passed upon by the critics of the State. If they want to adopt a State song known as the "Pennsylvania Song," I have no objection, but I do not think we should make a mess of things by putting out a State song that is not thoroughly adapted to our needs. Let us vote this bill down, or have it postponed until the next session of the Legislature, during which time it can be passed upon by the critics.

Mr. DAVID F. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the several questions and discussions already offered, I have a few words to say in support of this bill. The gentleman from Crawford, (Mr. Bolard), says that the people of the State are not familiar with this song, nor have they passed upon it. For the information of the gentleman I wish to state that copies of this song have been distributed throughout the State, and the members of the House have had at their disposal these copies so they could read the words and hear the music.

I think, members of the House, you will agree with me after reading over carefully the beautiful language of this song, that it stands for something more than you and I are able to measure here. This language is beautiful and elevating, and if you will bear with me I shall read the poem for the benefit of the House. Out of respect for the distinguished gentleman who composed these words, Dr. Will George Butler, one of the most distinguished musicians in the State of Pennsylvania, a very competent man, let me read:

"O Pennsylvania of mine.
I bow me at thy sacred shrine
And there beneath God's vaulted dome
I swear a vow for home, sweet home!
The Keystone State that binds the whole,
With pride we look upon thy scroll
And read among the battle scars
Thy glory writ in golden stars."

Gentlemen, I trust you will look upon this with sincerity, in the feeling and spirit in which it has been composed, and in the spirit and feeling in which it has been introduced, that the children of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania may know in poetry and in song what Pennsylvania stood for in the past and stands for today. I trust that you will give your approval to the beautiful language contained in this poem.

Mr. HARER. Mr. Speaker, this is not only a song, it is something more than mere words. We do not have an adopted anthem for the United States. We do have "The Star Spangled Banner," but I doubt if any of us know all of the words. In choosing a song for the State we want something that is sanctioned by public opinion and popular authority. We do not want something that the people have not heard. I do not know that I have ever heard this song reproduced. I think we should go pretty easy in choosing a song that is going to mean so much to the State of Pennsylvania.

Mr. PALMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of information.

Mr. PALMER. I desire to ask the sponsor of this bill whether it was advertised in a local paper before it was put on the calendar. Was this bill advertised in the local papers?

Mr. DAVID F. DAVIS. It was not.

Mr. PALMER. Mr. Speaker, then I rise to a point of order, and to sustain that point of order, the act is a local act; it only affects Allegheny, Fort Duquesne, the Susquehanna River, Valley Forge and Philadelphia, and has left out the entire anthracite coal region; and for that reason, being a local act, it is unconstitutional.

Mr. DITHRICH. Mr. Speaker, does the sponor of this bill know whether the author has had the poem copyrighted?

Mr. DAVID F. DAVIS. He has.

Mr. DITHRICH. Has the author of the poem agreed to forego royalty on this poem?

Mr. DAVID F. DAVIS. I am certain of that.

Mr. DITHRICH. Are you speaking for the composer?

Mr. DAVID F. DAVIS. I am.

On the question recurring.

Shall the bill pass finally?

An Act authorizing cemetery companies and associations to exercise the right of eminent domain to enlarge cemeteries and burial grounds

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. Speaker, in reading over this bill, you will see that it gives the right of eminent domain to cemetery companies to take your land whenever they see fit. We all know that one of the best paying propositions is a cemetery company, and we who live adjacent to the big cities, in Delaware County and in Montgomery Company, and those adjacent to the city of Pittsburgh and Lancaster, know how thickly those counties at the present time are filled with cemeteries. Your land, your farm land, can be taken by anyone who desires to have a cemetery. Now, these cemeteris do not pay any tax. In th county of Delaware at the present time in many townships, in Upper Darby township, there are eight cemeteries. They take the best land, and the township receives no tax whatever for the land that is taken. It seems to me this is a bad bill, and I ask you to vote it down.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 646, entitled:

An Act to amend section one of an act approved the twenty-third day of April one thousand nine hundred and nine (Pamphlet Laws one hundred seventy-one) entitled "An Act making it a misdemeanor for any person to make utter circulate or transmit false or derogatory statements affecting the solvency or financial standing of any bank banking house banking company trust company surety ompany guarantee company title insurance company or other financial institution in this Commonwealth and providing penalties for violation of this act" by extending the provisions of said act to life and fire insurance companies.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

MR. RAMSEY IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. GANS. Mr. Speaker, the Act of April 23, 1909 (P. L. 171) was intended to prevent persons from circulating false or derogatory statements affecting the solvency or financial standing of any bank, banking house, trust company, surety company, guaranty company, title insurance company, or other financial institution.

The history of the finances of the country show that men, for malicious and other purposes, have adopted a method of circulating false reports in order to lower the value of the company and thereby attempt to gain control for their own selfish purposes, bringing trouble upon those who were financially interested, and causing undue hardships.

Amendment to the act carries out the original purposes of the act, but adds the words "life insurance and fire insurance company incorporated in or licensed in this Commonwealth."

The main purposes of the act above quoted are carried out, but it is likewise sought to prohibit and prevent the attack upon life insurance companies and fire insurance companies incorporated in the State and duly licensed and under the supervision of the Insurance Commissioner. The same argument would apply to both of these institutions as applied under the Act of 1909. It is intended to prevent such practices, because it has been shown that many poor people invest their money in these smaller fire and life insurance companies, both within and without the State, but licensed in the State, and they, too, should receive the protecting arm of the Commonwealth.

On the question recurring.

Shall the bill pass finally?

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 479, as follows:

An Act abolishing the distinction between an appeal and a certiorari from the judgments of justices of the peace and aldermen providing that all judgments of justices of the peace and aldermen shall be reviewed by a procedure called an appeal and regulating the practice in such appeals

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That in all counties having a population of less than five hundred thousand inhabitants the distinction between an appeal and a certiorari from the judgments of justices of the peace and aldermen shall hereafter be reviewed in a proceeding to be called an appeal

Section 2 In all such counties appeals in civil cases and actions for penalties shall be taken to the court of common pleas of the proper county in the manner now or hereafter provided by law for such appeals The plaintiff shall within fifteen days after the first day of the term of court next succeeding the taking of an appeal file a statement in accordance with the provisions of the "Practice Act nineteen fifteen" and all further proceedings shall be in accordance with the provisions of said act Questions heretofore raised by certiorari or demurrer shall be raised in the affidavit of defense and shall be disposed of as provided by section twenty of the said practice act

Section 4 All acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

BILL RECOMMITTED.

Mr. GOODNOUGH. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Judiciary Local Committee for the purpose of a hearing.

Mr. COLVILLE. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. BALDRIGE. Mr. Speaker, I think that this bill is more than local. I think it should go to the Committee on Judiciary General.

The SPEAKER. To what committee was the bill originally referred?

Mr. GOODNOUGH. The bill was originally referred to the Judiciary Local Committee, and I am sending it back to the Committee on Judiciary Local. No, Mr. Speaker, I am mistaken, the bill was originally sent to the Judiciary Special Committee, and my motion is to send it back to that committee.

The SPEAKER: Does the gentleman insist upon his motion?

Mr. GOODNOUGH. Mr. Speaker, I do.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. BALDRIGE. Mr. Speaker, as I understand these various committees, a bill that is local in character goes to the Judiciary Local Committee. This bill is not a local bill, but general in character, and I think should be sent to the Judiciary General Committee. I therefore move to amend the motion by striking out "Judiciary Special" and inserting "Judiciary General."

Mr. WILLSON. Mr. Speaker, I second the amendment.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

The Speaker announced that the "nays" appeared to have it.

Whereupon,

A division was called for, and sixty-five gentlemen having voted in the affirmative, and seventy-nine in the negative, the question was determined in the negative, and the amendment was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. RAMSEY. Mr. Speaker, as I understand the motion, it is to recommit the bill to the Judiciary Special Committee, and not the Judiciary Local.

Mr. GOODNOUGH. Mr. Speaker, my motion is to recommit it to the same committee to which it was referred originally.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 179, entitled:

An Act authorizing the judges learned in the law of the courts of common pleas and orphans' courts of the counties having a population of more than one hundred and fifty thousand and less than two hundred fifty thousand inhabitants to employ suitable clerical assistance and providing for the payment of such clerical assistance by the several counties.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

NAYS—1.

Horne,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 86, entitled:

An Act making the husband or wife of any person charged with the commission of a criminal offense a competent witness for the Commonwealth in any criminal proceeding as to any matter or thing occurring prior to the marriage of said witness to the person so charged

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. ADAM C. SCHAEFFER. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Military Committee.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. DITHRICH. Mr. Speaker, as a member of the Military Committee, and having just been recently in the service of our country, I feel that it would be an insult to the Military Affairs Committee of the House to have this bill referred to it. The bill should be disposed of here on the floor of the House—either that, or sent back to the committee where it originated. If the gentleman has anything to say in defense of his bill he should say it here, but I do not think that it should be sent to the Military Affairs Committee.

Mr. GOLDER. Mr. Speaker, I feel that this bill one that can best be considered by those who are entirely disinterested, and as chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, I know personally that I am entirely disinterested, that this bill will be carefully considered and reported to this House.

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker, in all fairness to everybody I feel that this bill should be considered at this time. I think of all you people in this House will recognize that the bill has some merit. There are a few in the House, of course, who are opposed to this bill from a legal standpoint. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask a question first. Is this bill open for discussion, or has it been recommitted to a committee?

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion to recommit.

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker, I thought that had passed. Now Mr. Speaker,—

POINT OF ORDER.

Mr. ROBERT L. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. ROBERT L. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, my point of order is that this bill not having been in the Military Committee, the motion to recommit is out of order.

The SPEAKER. The point of order is not well taken. The motion is a motion to recommit the bill to the Committee on Military.

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House: In defense of this bill I want to say that I have a letter here from the judge at New Castle, and also one from Cambria County—

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will confine his remarks to the question before the House, which is the motion to recommit.

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker, I am trying here to prevent the bill from being recommitted. The purpose of recommitting the bill is to kill it, and I am trying to show that this bill should no be recommitted, because the people of Pennsylvania want it passed, and especially the judges and district attorneys in different parts of the State.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker, I also have a letter here from Washington County, from the district attorney, Isaac W. Baum; one from Snyder County, from the judge, Mr. Quigley — you gentlemen know who they are — and also one from Williamsport, from Harvey W. Whitehead, president judge, and one from Hollidaysburg, from Mr. Patterson, the district attorney.

Gentlemen of the House, the proposition laid down in this act, this proposed act, is very plain. It is an act to prevent a criminal from marrying in order to escape punishment for his crime. I am not an attorney, but the attorneys of this House, some of them, have taken exception to that, inasmuch as they say it is liable to threaten the sacred marriage vow between man and wife. The object of this bill is this, that if a crime is committed, for instance, and it is done between the time that a man and girl going together—for instance, if she goes up before the court as a witness against this man and he makes a proposition of marriage to her, according to the present law she cannot become a competent witness; and yet she may be the only eye-witness to the crime. If she is the only eye-witness to this crime and by the simple act of marriage this man can have no eye-witness here, should not this law be placed on the statute books? Where is there any conflict of the marriage vow? If they are trying to evade the law by simple marriage, he is only making her his wife for a few days until a divorce is granted.

As the law now stands, if a man is guilty of any statutory crime, for instance a crime that is very bad, and he tries to evade the law by marrying this girl, perhaps a girl of twelve or thirteen years of age, which will only last for a short time until the crime is covered, and then pays the parents of the girl for the purpose of evading the law, and later goes away and leaves that girl, she cannot become a competent eye-witness. Why should not the laws of Pennsylvania make a man's wife a competent eye-witness. If the district attorneys and judges of the courts of Pennsylvania are to bring criminals to justice, I think we should give them this additional power. Therefore, this bill should not be recommitted.

Mr. DITHRICH. In explanation of my remarks a few moments ago I wish to say I am opposed to bill, but I am chiefly opposed to the Committee on Military Affairs being made the butt of a joke. If you want to send it anywhere, sent it to the Committee on Railroads.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion to recommit the bill to the Committee on Military Affairs?

Mr. ADAM C. SCHAEFFER. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my motion to recommit this bill to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my second to the motion.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Clearfield, Mr. Phillips.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Clearfield, Mr. Phillips, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. PHILLIPS. Yes, sir; with pleasure.

Mr. SIMPSON. I desire to ask if this bill is here for the purpose of fitting a particular case that you or some person other than you may have had in mind.

Mr. PHILLIPS. No, sir; the bill as it was drawn at the instigation of the district attorney of our county; not being an attorney, I did not draw it, but it does fit two or three cases, one in Newcastle and another one that I know of in another county.

Mr. SIMPSON. Then with these particular cases under consideration, the burden would rest upon the entire Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in case this bill were passed.

Mr. PHILLIPS. This is to prove the guilt of a party.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask the gentleman does he think that a burden as great as this ought to be imposed upon the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in order that two or three particular cases might be reached?

Mr. PHILLIPS. I think the burden should be imposed upon the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to bring any criminal to justice. I think the law should be so amended as to include everyone who is a criminal.

Mr. SIMPSON. Is not every district attorney in every county in the State of Pennsylvania now elected for that purpose?

Mr. PHILLIPS. Yes, sir; but he must have the law back of him.

Mr. SIMPSON. Is it not within the province of every district attorney to admit that a man that is being tried is assumed to be innocent until he is proven guilty and consequently that he gets a fair trial according to law?

Mr. PHILLIPS. That is right.

Mr. SIMPSON. Why do you want to place into the hands of any district attorney any power that might possibly break up an innocent home?

Mr. PHILLIPS. Gentlemen of the House, this proposition can never break up an innocent home. If a man marries a woman to get rid of a charge for a criminal offense to show that he is innocent, if he is not, it surely will never break up a happy home.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I am one of the men that is very bitterly opposed to this bill, not because I am a criminal lawyer or because I practice in criminal courts, but because I know the duties of the district attorneys as well, possibly, as the gentleman who drew the bill, and in all probability as well as the gentleman who wrote those letters to Mr. Phillips. I wish to say now that there is not a district attorney practicing the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania that has not all the forces back of him to bring a criminal to justice that there are in the country, which serve for the sole and express purpose of running down criminals and they are employed more zealously today when they ever were before. What for? For the sole and express purpose of making that particular district attorney effective in his position and making a reputation. At what cost? At a cost, frequently, of the liberty of some innocent man. And to go to work now and bring before this House a bill that will place into the district attorney's hands more power than he has,—I say that is one of the things that the State of Pennsylvania ought not to do, because the only duty that the district attorney has to perform, if he performs that duty honestly, conscientiously, scrupulously, is to see that every defendant brought before the bar of criminal justice is given a fair trial according to law and not a trial for the sole and express purpose of convicting some man. Every criminal, no matter who he is, is brought into a criminal court absolutely free and he stands in that position until the Commonwealth has proved by the preponderance of evidence alone to the contrary. That is not sufficient to deprive you and me of our liberty. It is not sufficient to deprive you and me of our liberty. It is not sufficient to deprive any person brought there of his liberty. He must prove to twelve men selected for that purpose, jurors who are his peers, beyond a reasonable doubt that that man is guilty of that particular crime. I say to you that the State of Pennsylvania has placed ample powers in the hands of the district attorney to perform that duty, and they have supplemented that power in a great many instances until I can say to you truthfully that it is not in a position where it is imposed upon. I can show you cases in the western part of this State where the district attorney employes detective after detective. What for? For the sole and express purpose of getting a jury list, and that jury list is handed to the district attorney or to the district attorneys office. Why? So that they may be able to know every man that appears on that jury: his standing in the community, his position in society, the societies he belongs to and the people he associates with, the men who frequent his home, everything about him, even to his religion; and still they talk about wanting more power. If a man comes in there for the purpose of defending some innocent man, in all probability, but has not the time or money so that he could possibly take up or look over that jury list, and if he wishes assistance from the district attorney, if you ask a district attorney or one of his assistants to see that list, you are told politely but firmly that that is the property of the district attorney's office of that county and is used for the sole purpose of trying to convict men brought into the criminal court, and this assistance is paid for by the citizens of that county. When we go to work to pass an act of this kind we drag every person in this Commonwealth in and it might be used a thousand times for the sole and express purpose of convicting some man, or it might be used a thousand times for the purpose of breaking up homes. You and I ought not to be parties to anything that we might me sorry for, when someone in whom we are interested or some of our friends who are innocent might possibly be punished. I ask you in all fairness to vote down this bill.

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny (Mr. Simpson).

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, yes, sir.

Mr. PHILLIPS. How does he expect a district attorney to bring criminal prosecution if the law is in favor of the criminal?

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, in the first place, it is not the province of the district attorney to commence criminal prosecutions. They are commenced outside the district attorney's office—only by special order of the court—then brought in to the grand jury under the direction of the district attorney.

In the second place, we are not passing laws here for the benefit of criminals because all men outside of the Tombs are considered, under our law, to be absolutely innocent.

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House: Just one word in answer to the gentleman from Allegheny (Mr. Simpson). It is the duty, as I understand it, of the district attorneys of the several counties of the State of Pennsylvania and other States to see that every criminal is brought before the bar of justice and properly punished, but that he be given, of course, a fair trial to determine his guilt or innocence. If we are not now to discriminate and allow a criminal, by the simple act of matrimony, to escape some of the most vicious crimes on the statute books of Pennsylvania, I do not see how the district attorneys or judges of the courts enforce the law. That is the case in the past. It is surely up to us to bring all criminals to justice and up to the Legislature of Pennsylvania to so enact the laws and so amend the laws that they are not a complicated affair. Every criminal knows what he can do. The average man knows that if he can marry a girl he can get out of it for the sake of a few dollars. Why allow them to put on the statute books of Pennsylvania. I think this is a meritorious measure and one that deserves our support.

Mr. J. A. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, there is one remark that has been made by the gentleman from Clearfield that causes me to believe that the purpose of the passage of this act is to cover at least one if not more cases. I want to say in confirmation of the remarks of the gentleman from Allegheny. (Mr. Simpson), that if the district attorney of any of our counties was careful in what he intended to do and examined carefully the law before he started to do it, he would not want to ask us to specially pass for his benefit an act of this kind, because this act has absolutely no relevancy and cannot be used in the case of any defendant now on trial or charged with any crmes because an act passed now, of this nature, would interfere with the constitutional provisions of the United States regarding ex-post facto law. This act, if passed, would become an ex post facto law as to any man the district attorney has in mind, for the Supreme Court of the United States and our own courts have ruled that it applies not merely to the offence, but also what is the evidence before the commission of that crime. I am one of those who believes that special legislation of this character should not be passed and that this practice should be stopped.

The gentleman from Clearfield, Mr. Phillips has referred to the "simple act of matrimony," that it will prevent a criminal from coming to justice. I never knew that our courts or the courts of any of our sister States have looked on matrimony as a simple act. Our own Supreme Court has held it up as the most sacred contract, and it is not in our mouths to arise and say that even people who may be under the shadow or the cloud of crime, entering into the holy bonds of matrimony, are committing a simple act. And most of all, most of all, why should we pass an act which is contrary to all the doctrines which have been handed down to us by our fathers to cover a case which is so rare that it is hardly worth talking of. How often is it, taking our criminal records up and examining them, that we find a woman marrying a man to shield him from conviction. Are we going to say that it is a normal condition among our women that they marry men to keep them out of jail? Don't we know, on the contrary, that women are opposed to marrying men under the shadow of crime. It strikes me that we can wisely look back to the old laws of England which have provided, in cases of this kind, the old doctrine that a wife shall not be a witness against her husband and follow it for every one who has made a study of the laws of our own country and the laws of England knows the efficiency of the laws of England and that on the question of prosecution they have exceeded our own records, and yet England has never yet changed her law on that subject. It seems to me that if we believe in the holy bonds of matrimony we should keep the home sacred and not permit the district attorney to go in there and break it up.

Mr. STERLING. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

The SPEAKER. I think all the gentlemen have spoken who desire to speak on the question.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

PRAYER.

The Chaplain, Rev. W. H. Feldmann, offered the following prayer:

O Thou blessed Benefactor of us all, whose mercy streams down upon us continuously, we offer Thee this morning our adoration and devotion for Thy marked favor and goodness. At this time we also would bring before Thee the needs and the desires of our homes, from which we are separated, from the friends and families in whose hearts we at least enjoy a noble estimation. We pray Thee that Thou wilt soothe all sorrow and allay all fear that may be within our bounds; and we beseech Thee further that Thou wilt so inspire us, one and all, by the high inspiration we enjoy there that our labors may become easy for us, one and all; and especially for these men, that they may be inspired by those homes and enjoy a like estimation of their fellow-citizens in their communities. Bless us, one and all, and grant unto us Thy favor. We ask it all in Thy love and for Thy love's sake. Amen.

WM. G. SPROUL.

VETO OF SENATE BILL NO. 69.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Executive Chamber, Harrisburg, March 12, 1919.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Gentlemen: I herewith return, without my approval, Senate Bill No. 69.

This bill attempts to validate decrees in divorce which are nullities, and therefore endeavors to make valid divorces for which there was no warrant in law at the time the decrees were made, and in which the proceedings were entirely irregular because the Court was without jurisdiction to entertain the proceedings or enter the decrees.

Furthermore, this bill would not authorize the granting of divorces to all persons whose husbands or wives were insane, but only to those persons within that class who had heretofore been illegally granted a divorce.

This bill also violates Section 7 of Article III of the Constitution, which prohibits special legislation "granting divorces," and would seem to infringe the constitutional provision against "any law impairing the obligation of contracts," and of the provision that no person "can be deprived of his life, liberty or property unless by the judgment of his peers or the law of the land."

WM. C. SPROUL.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass the objections of the Governor to the contrary notwithstanding?

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. SALUS. Mr. President, I move that the question together with the further consideration of the bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. MEARKLE. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

HOUSE MESSAGES.

HOUSE CONCURS IN SENATE BILL NO. 10.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced, returned to the Senate, Senate Bill No. 10, entitled:

An Act authorizing cities of the third class with the assent of the electors duly obtained at an election to use moneys borrowed or authorized to be borrowed for purposes which have proved impracticable or impossible for any other lawful municipal purpose with the information that the House has passed the same without amendment.

SENATE BILL NO. 25 RETURNED WITH AMENDMENTS.

He also returned to the Senate, Senate Bill No. 25, entitled:

An Act amending section five hundred and fifteen of an act approved May eighteenth Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and eleven (Pamphlet Laws Three Hundred and Nine), entitled "An Act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania together with the provisions by which it shall be administered and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof providing revenue to establish and maintain the same and the method of collecting such revenue and repealing all laws general special or local or any parts thereof that are or may be inconsistent therewith" so as to modify the scope of the prohibition against levying of taxes or incurring of debts for certain purposes while any proceeding for a change of boundary lines affecting any school district is pending.

with the information that the House has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

Mr. SCHANTZ. Mr. President, I move that Rule 21, which requires amended bills to be noted on the calendar, be in this case dispensed with, and the Senate proceed to the consideration of the amendments made by the House of Representatives to the foregoing bill.

Mr. MEARKLE. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Said amendments having been printed as required by the Constitution were read as follows:

Amend Section 1, page 3, by striking out the following:

Section 515 While proceedings are pending in court for the changing of any boundary lines of any city incorporated town borough or township or the creation of any new city borough or township the board of school directors in every school district the territory of which will be lessened or wholly annexed to another municipality by such change of boundary lines or creation of a new municipality shall not levy or assess any school tax or incur any debts for the purpose of purchasing ground or building or enlarging a school building Provided That this section shall not prevent the levying and collecting of the necessary taxes or the incurring of an indebtedness in order to rebuild a school building recently injured or destroyed or in order to pay any debts previously incurred.

and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

Section 515 While proceedings are pending in court for the changing of any boundary lines of any city incoroporated town borough or township or the creation of any new city borough or township the board of school directors in every school district to be affected by such change of bundary lines or creation of a new municipality shall be permitted to levy and assess a school tax and incur debts for the purpose of purchasing ground or building or enlarging a school building in the same manner as though such proceedings were not pending in court for the changing of any boundary lines of any such city incorporated town borough or township or the creation of any new city borough or township.

Amend the title, page 1, line 12 by striking out the words "modify the scope of" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "remove."

On the question,

Will the Senate concur in the same?

Mr. SCHANTZ. Mr. President, it appears that in the passage of this bill in the House there was an error made and that the bill must be further amended. It appears that the only way to do it will be to non-concur now in the House amendments and send it back to the House for further amendment. I, therefore, ask the Senate to non-concur in the House amendments.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate concur in the amendments?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in committee of the whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 464, as follows:

A Joint Resolution authorizing action by the authorities of this Commonwealth to prevent discrimination against the citizens of this Commonwealth in the use of natural gas which would result from the law recently enacted by the State of West Virginia

Whereas There are millions of domestic and hundreds of industrial consumers of natural gas citizens of this Commonwealth who have expended enormous sums of money to equip their houses and plants respectively with appliances adapted for burning this fuel and to restrict and diminish the supply to any considerable extent would affect the domestic consumers in their health their comfort their convenience or their welfare would subject them to enormous property losses in rendering useless their present appliances and necessitating the substitution of others in many cases requiring the reconstruction of dwellings while the industrial consumers if thus restricted and the supply of gas greatly diminished would not only suffer great loss but be placed at a disadvantage in competition with manufacturers in other States where by law an adequate supply was provided

And Whereas Citizens of this Commonwealth have invested hundreds of millions of dollars in the exploration for and the development of natural gas wells and fields in the State of West Virginia and in the installation of transportation systems for the transmission of the gas thus found from West Virginia into Pennsylvania in order to obtain a supply for its citizens and to this end have made contracts and entered into obligations with cities and boroughs as well as with industrial plants and others and

Whereas The citizens of said cities and boroughs and the owners of said industrial plants and others are to a large extent dependent upon and have relied for their supply upon the gas transported from the State of West Virginia into the State of Pennsylvania the natural gas available from other sections being wholly inadequate a large proportion of said gas now consumed in Pennsylvania coming from West Virginia and

Whereas In order to restrain and restrict the transmission of said gas from West Virginia into Pennsylvania and to discriminate against the citizens of Pennsylvania and in favor of the citizens of West Virginia and State of West Virginia on the seventeenth day of February one thousand nine hundred and nineteen did enact a law the effect whereof is that the gas produced in said State should be first applied to the full satisfaction of all the domestic industrial and other demands of the citizens of that State before any therof could be transmitted into Pennsylvania thus disregarding the rights of citizens of Pennsylvania and the obligations of their contracts and

Whereas By cumulative fines and penalties civil and criminal said law of West Virginia is designed to deter parties engaged in the production and transmission of natural gas in West Virginia into Pennsylvania from instituting legal proceedings to have tested and adjudicated the right of said State so to restrict and prevent the transmission of gas from West Virginia until after all of the demands of its citizens have been first adequately supplied and

Whereas The citizens of this State who will suffer in their health comfort convenience welfare and property by the enforcement of this law are without remedy or redress except through action by this Commonwealth and

Whereas The enforcement of said law of West Virginia would be in conflict with the Constitution of the United States which inhabits the placing of burdens and restraints upon interstate commerce and prevents laws impairing the obligation of contracts and

Whereas The framers of the Constitution of the United States by the provisions of said Constitution sought to prevent any State from husbanding and applying its natural resources solely for the benefit of its own citizens to the detriment and loss of the citizens of other States well knowing if this policy were pursued it would result in reprisals and all of the evils attendant thereon and vested in the Federal courts the power to prevent any State from entering upon any such course of conduct now therefore

Be it Resolved By the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania with the concurrence of the House of Representatives that the Attorney General be and he is hereby authorized and directed to institute such legal proceedings and do all other acts necessary to protect the rights and interests of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and of its citizens from any and all violation or infringement by the State of West Virginia or by any of its constituted authorities under or in pursuance of said law of West Virginia affecting or intended to affect consumers of natural gas in Pennsylvania.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

RESOLUTION EXPRESSING SYMPATHY ON THE DEATH OF DR. NATHAN C. SCHAEFFER.

Mr. SARIG offered the following resolution, which was twice read by the clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 17, 1919.

Whereas, The people of the Commonwealth have been saddened by the announcement of the death of Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer, Superintendent of Public Instruction; and

Whereas, The Commonwealth has by the death of Dr. Schaeffer lost an efficient and capable head of the Department of Public Instruction, a conscientious officer and the oldest executive of the Commonwealth in point of service; and

Whereas, The cause of education has by the death of Dr. Schaeffer lost a great and forceful leader and educational author, who by his public career and private life has set a standard worthy of emulation by every true American, therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has suffered an irreparable loss.

Resolved, That the members of the House of Representatives record their sorrow, and express their heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved family,

Resolved, That when the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth adjourn this day, it do so to the memory of Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer.

Resolved, That these resolutions be engrossed and a copy thereof as an expression of sympathy be sent to the family.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

Mr. SARIG. Mr. Speaker, I rise at this time to pay feeble tribute to the memory and the life and character of our distinguished friend and our distinguished servant, Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer. It has been my privilege to enjoy an intimate acquaintance with him, being in his classroom as a boy, and later as a teacher in the public schools, and still later as a representative from Berks County I had the privilege and the pleasure to have a close connection with him and to understand fully the nature of this distinguished citizen from Berks County.

Dr. Schaeffer was born in Berks County seventy years ago on a farm in Maxatawney Township. His father was strongly and incentively in favor of education, and at one time—at one and the same time—he sent five sons away from his farm to the higher institutions of learning while he did the work of his farm with the aid of help. I first became acquainted with Dr. Schaeffer as a pupil at the Kutztown State Normal School, in 1891, and I then for the first time realized and understood the practical nature of his character. Dr. Schaeffer was a tower of strength among men in the intellectual world and he was not only a giant among intellectuals, but Dr. Schaeffer possessed that great heart power and that great soul power which has made America famous the world over during the last few years. European writers tell us at the present day that the great inspiring power back of the American Army was its heart power or its soul power, as you please. It was that power, that spirit of the Crusaders, that drove them against the Hun and that never permitted the Hun to face westward again after they once had been on the run. It was this peculiar characteristic of Dr. Schaeffer that made him so successful in the schoolroom. I remember distinctly when the news reached the Normal School at Kutztown that Dr. Schaeffer had been appointed Superintendent of Public Instruction and that he was to leave us. I remember then the sorrows and heartaches among those pupils, for you have no idea what strong ties and bonds of friendship there had sprung up between Dr. Schaeffer and his pupils. The secret of his success as a teacher and lecturer was his ability and his power to reach men through the good way to their hearts. He taught not only the intellectual, he trained not only the intellectual powers of those pupils, but the peculiar characteristics that Dr. Schaeffer had was to appeal to the heart-power, the soul power and he inspired the heart to better things and pupils felt it who came under his instruction. That was the secret of his great life as a teacher; that was the secret of his life as a lecturer. There were very few audiences who did not feel inspired and whose hearts Dr. Schaeffer could not reach. After he was elevated to the post of Superintendent of Public Instruction, these same qualities stood him in good need. It was these same qualities, these qualities of heart power, that good sound commonsense and that good business judgment that made him the power that he was in the educational world. As I have said before, he stood in the educational field a power among men, like a mighty giant oak in the forest when the educational winds would blow, when men would sway to and fro with their fancies and their frills, we had in him one who would not yield and Dr. Schaeffer stood like a giant oak. He was progressive along safe and sane lines; he was progressive and steady. It was this peculiar, strong judgment, his peculiar strong character that made him the power among men that he was. In the death of Dr. Schaeffer Pennsylvania loses one of her most destinguished citizens. He was re-appointed by six governors to the position which he held at the time of his death, and he has served longer as Superintendent of Public Instruction in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania than any other man in the history of Pennsylvania. In the death of Dr. Schaeffer Berks County loses one of her most distinguished citizens and that is a loss not alone to Berks County, it is a loss to the people of Pennsylvania and as his reputation extended beyond the borders of Pennsylvania, his death is a distinct loss to the nation. Dr. Schaeffer has gone to his reward, but his great heart and his great soul and the power that issued therefrom, the heart throbs will live and will continue to throb long in the hearts of men and women. I therefore ask my friends that when this House adjourns tonight, that it do so in memory of this great and distinguished citizen of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania—Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer.

Mr. HESS. Mr Speaker and gentlemen of the House: Dr. Schaeffer was born in Berks county, a Democrat, but after he saw the light he became a Republican. He then moved to Lancaster county and spent his declining years in the shadow of his alma mater, Franklin and Marshall college. Dr. Schaeffer has honored Lancaster county by having made it the place of his residence during a large part of his life, and I feel, in rising to second this resolution, that in the death of Nathan C. Schaeffer, Lancaster county has lost one of its foremost citizens, and Pennsylvania and our country have lost one of our foremost educators. He always emphasized means to an end, and as such he embraced every opportunity to impress the people of the Commonwealth, over the education of which he was honored as its presiding officer, to improve the plant, the physical plant, as well as the teacher within the plant; and there stand today over this Commonwealth mighty monuments in the shape of splendid school buildings, monuments to his memory.

If you will refer to Smull's Handbook of 1916, page 246, you will find there three photographs; first, that of Henry Houck, who came to Harrisburg in 1867 first, as Deputy Superintendent of Public Instruction and later as Secretary of Internal Affairs. Next to the photograph of Henry Houck you will find that of Thomas J. Stewart, first Assistant and later Adjutant General of this great State. Next on the same page you will find the photograph of Nathan C. Schaeffer, who came to Harrisburg on June 1, 1893, as the head of the Department of Education of this great Commonwealth. Three short years have rolled by since that edition of Smull's was published, but within a trifle of little more than a year these three great men have been moved upward to a higher plane, and if it emphasizes anything it emphasizes the work of the great Reaper and the nearness of the end of us all.

Nathan C. Schaeffer served in this capacity for a greater period of time than any man served in a similar capacity in all these United States of America. What can be said that more profoundly emphasizes the manner in which he was appreciated by the citizens of this great Commonwealth! He was a man of remarkable mental and intellectual power, great executive ability and wide learning; he was frank and straightforward in character and endowed with a high degree of common sense. In his life, Dr. Schaeffer was guided by the rule that whatever was worth doing was worth doing well. If there was one thing that distinguished him above any other, it was that of thoroughness in all the work that he undertook. He was a man of a genial disposition and splendid personality, a man whom to know was to love, and in his death the County of Lancaster and the County of Berks, and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania loses one of its foremost citizens.

The SPEAKER. Are there any further remarks?

On the question recurring,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

NAYS—0.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the same to the Senate with information that the House has passed it with amendments, in which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on third reading House Bill No. 131, entitled

A Supplement to the second section of an act, entitled "A Supplement to the twenty-fourth section of an act, entitled 'An Act to provide revenue by taxation, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine,' approved the first day of June, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, amending the twenty-fourth section, by providing for the payment by the State Treasurer of one-half of the two per centum tax on premiums paid by foreign fire insurance companies to the treasurers of the several cities and boroughs within this Commonwealth," approved the twenty-eighth day of June one thousand eight hundred and ninety-five; amending the same to provide for the payment of the net proceeds of the entire two per centum tax for the purpose indicated in the original act and supplement, including townships, among the distributees, and providing for certain conditions upon said distributions.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, In absence of the sponsor, I move that this bill be placed on the postponed calendar.

Mr. GLASS. I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 741, entitled

An Act providing that clerks assisting the registers of wills in the collection of inheritance taxes shall be appointed and their compensation fixed by the Auditor General and prescribing the method of their payment and that of other expenses incident to the collection of said taxes

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It as agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the sponsor of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DAWSON. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. PHILLIPS. This bill provides that all clerks and other persons other than appraisers required to assist any register of wills in any one of the counties of this Commonwealth in collecting and paying over inheritance taxes shall be appointed and their compensation fixed by the Auditor General. In counties the size of ours, or the smaller counties, the deputy recorder sometimes assists in the collection of this money. He is appointed by the recorder. According to this bill he would have to be appointed by the Auditor General, and his compensation fixed by the Auditor General.

Mr. DAWSON. Mr. Speaker, it is true that this bill affects the small counties as well as the large counties. The Auditor General would have the appointing of them individually, and would have the fixing of their salaries.

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask another question. Would not the Auditor General have the appointing of the deputy recorder? or else the deputy recorder could not receive taxes as referred to in this bill, inheritance taxes. Is that right?

Mr. DAWSON. Mr. Speaker, the Auditor General would not have to appoint the deputy recorder; in fact, he would not have to appoint the deputy recorder even to collect other taxes, but if the law would permit him to appoint the deputy he could fix the additional salary.

Mr. ROBERT L. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House: I do not believe this House is going to pass this bill as it is now offered. I can see no reason why we should take away from our county recorders or registers the duty they now have of collecting these inheritance taxes. They are the men we elected for that purpose. They are competent and can do this work better and more satisfactorily, I believe, than anyone else. Why should we take away from the counties this duty that is now imposed upon them by law? Has there been any dissatisfaction in your county over the collecting of these inheritance taxes? This is a rather broad proposition . In but a few words, it provides that these clerks and assistants for collecting these taxes shall be appointed by the Auditor General of the Commonwealth, and that he shall fix their salaries. I do not believe, gentlemen, that we ought to go that far. I believe we ought to leave a very satisfactory method of collecting inheritance taxes alone. It is very satisfactory, the present arrangement. The tax is collected, and at a very reasonable figure. Gentlemen, I think we should vote down this bill.

Mr. DAWSON. Mr. Speaker, I beg to differ with the gentleman from Lawrence (Mr. Robert L. Wallace). This tax was not put on the statute books until within the last few years, and the register of wills was named as a collector, and it has been found that it has not proven satisfactory. The Auditor General should be in charge of all State taxes, and not a county official. The Auditor General now has clerks in the various offices throughout the Commonwealth, with the approval of the registers of wills, and they are looking after the collection of taxes for the State. The Auditor General has also appointed attorneys in various complicated estates to expedite the collecting of taxes. When the gentleman from Lawrence says that the collection of State taxes has been satisfactory, that is not true; because the Auditor General states that under the present arrangements he has no actual supervision, and there is no method of finding out whether the State gets all that may be due it. We have found in the collection of the mercantile tax that it has not. Now that the Auditor General of the State is in charge, we have increased that over one hundred per cent. As you all know, this is an administration measure and provides that all State taxes should be collected by the State, and not by a county official or his clerks.

Mr. ROBERT L. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, I don't think there is any disposition by anyone to take away from the Register of Wills the duty of collecting inheritance taxes. We have on the calendar two bills following this by the same sponsor fixing fees if you please, of the Register of Wills of all the counties for the collection of those taxes. He is obliged by law and no doubt will be after those other bills are passed, to collect and will still be continued in the capacity of the collector of collateral inheritance taxes and direct inheritance taxes. Why should we say to him, "We will furnish you your employes, your clerks, to do this," when the obligation rests upon the Register of Wills to collect those taxes and the Register is obliged to do this work and we are going to continue him in that capacity| The provisions of this bill are that you shall not select your clerks or employes, but that the state will select them for you. Now, we have all the safeguards possible thrown around the collection of those taxes. Every administrator when he takes out letters of administration gives bonds of surety thereon conditioned for the collection of those taxes, when he takes oath swearing that he will perform the duties of administrator with fidelity and seek to collect those taxes. Every time the courts appoint an auditor it is the duty of that auditor when making distribution of the proceeds of that estate to first see that the taxes are paid. All the safeguards possible are thrown around this, and in addition to all that, the Auditor General has his legal representative in every county to see to it that this thing is done. I think we ought to go a step further and say to the Register of Wills whose duty it is to collect those taxes, "You are not competent to select your clerks and assisants and we will select them for you." Let us hold the man that is responsible by law and let us continue him in that responsibility for the collection of those taxes. Every man works best when he is surrounded by men whom he is personally responsible for. If the Register of Wills makes his own selection he is responsible for those men and responsible for the service they give him. If somebody else is forced upon him, if clerks or employes are forced upon him who are not to his liking, possibly not congenial themselves and for whom he is not responsible, if you will take away from him the great incentive to do faithful service in that county, we will fail and we elect our Registers of Wills to collect these taxes. Every man that we select is sworn and bonded and their duty is as an employe and appointees of the court that they have to do with the distribution and the administration of estates and are required to do so by law, to see that the collateral inheritance tax as well as the direct inheritance taxes are paid. There is no way that a man can escape paying these taxes and I don't believe that there are many that do escape, and Auditor General's office has in every county man for the purpose of seeing to this.

Mr. DAWSON. Mr. Speaker, this is a bill that provides for men to assist in the collection of these taxes under the supervision of the Auditor General. As far as collecting taxes, anybody can take that money when it is handed over the counter. This provides for men who will make it a practical study. The Auditor General looks after it all to see that it is done and the Auditor General will see that the state tax under the operation of the Department and under the supervision of the Auditor General that we will have the same efficiency and that we will receive much more money than in the past. That has been proven by the Mercantile Tax Act.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the ayes and nays were taken.

Mr. ALLAN D. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The roll was verified as follows:

PRAYER.

The Chaplain, Rev. W. H. Feldmann, offered the following prayer:

O Thou Eternal Word, who wast in the beginning and hurled the world into space, and didst crown all Thy work in making man, grant, we beseech Thee, that Thy divine image may be in each and every man in this body. Grant unto them that right, truth, mercy, and justice, equity and love may prevail, and may they be real men; men of heart and brain and soul; men courageous enough not to be frightened by numbers; men who will not submit to wealth; men who will have an eye single to justice; men who will have no ear except to the cry of conscience; men who will seek to do at all times that which will enable them to face Thee without trembling. Grant unto them high convictions, and may they be men enough to defend them. Give them breadth of mind that they may have charity enough for those who differ with them. Purge Thou them from everything that is little. Give unto them Thy Spirit so that once again it may be said that Thou didst exalt them a little below the angels. But, O God, whatever else they may need, grant unto them that they may be men, red-hearted men, big-hearted men, noble, generous men. Amen.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House Proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 279, as follows:

An Act requiring the publication of all legal notices and legal advertising in the English laugage only and repealing all acts and parts of acts general local or special inconsistent therewith

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That hereafter all legal notices and legal advertisements published under authority of any law or any ordinance or rule of court by the commonwealth or by any county city borough town township school district or poor district or by any officer thereof or published under authority of any law or any ordinance or rule of court by any person copartnership association or corporation or any of their officers or agents shall be published in the English language only

Section 2 All acts and parts of acts general local or special which provide for or permit or require the publication of legal notices or legal advertising in any language other than the English language be and the same are hereby repealed

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. BOLARD. Mr. Speaker, before voting on this bill, as sponsor for it, I wish to say a few words in explanation of the attitude of the bill. It has been talked by many that this is a bill aimed at certain publications, certain individual publications. I wish to correct that. I wish to say that this bill is very short and very simple in its language, and provides just one thing: It provides that all the legal advertisements in this Commonwealth, no matter what nature they are, if in the nature of legal advertisements, shall be printed only in the English language. There is no other language in the jurisprudence of this Commonwealth except the English language. I maintain that the use of any language other than the English language, in a legal advertisement to be certified and go back into the records of this Commonwealth as part of the records of the Commonwealth, is not American, is not according to the spirit of our times, is not according to the spirit of the founders of this great Commonwealth. We have been allowed to drift and we have allowed ourselves to drift into a condition where we have even gone at the present time beyond specifying any particular foreign language in which an advertisement might be published, and in some counties it has gone so far as to compel officers to publish in a foreign language. This bill now repeals all that and puts us back to the fundamental principles of our court practice and our record practice.

There might be some argument that this is not necessary. I contend that the only way to build up the true spirit of Americanism to make this nation one nation without any division in it is to use but one language. I wish to quote the words of one of our most distinguished, if not the most distinguished, citizens we have had and who has just passed from us Ex-President Roosevelt. He says: "We have room but for one language here, and that is the English language, for we intend to see that the crucible turns our people out as Americans of American nationality and not as dwellers in a polyglot boarding house. The whole structure of good citizenship rests upon a knowledge of the English language. How can one who cannot read or speak our language expect to understand our government?"

There can be no question about that and the idea of this bill is to bring us back to the fundamental English language in all our legal advertising. I wish to say that since the introduction of this bill there have been a number of voluntary endorsements that have come to me and recommendations of the positions taken by the bill. I want to state briefly a few of them. The chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Pennsylvania League of Boroughs, representing practically all of the boroughs in this Commonwealth, writes me as follows, after a meeting of that association: "At the session of the Pennsylvania League of Boroughs, held on the 26th day of February, in Harrisburg, with over five hundred present, representing the three million citizens of the boroughs of this Commonwealth, it was unanimously agreed that all legal advertisements should be published in the English language only, and we sincerely hope that the bill of which you are the sponsor will receive the vote of every red-blooded American in the House." I have also the hearty endorsement of the Pennsylvania State Camp, Patriotic Order Sons of America, endorsing it and making it and asking that it be passed. I have also the endorsement, very emphatic, of the Philadelphia Protestant Federation, recognizing and recommending that it is what we need to build up and put together for all future time our Americanism.

The point was raised in discussion with me the other day in this matter that this bill was not necessary; that we should have the foreign languages for the foreign people. In the discussion the gentleman even made this statement: He said: "I have people in my district in the third generation in America who speak nothing but the Yiddish language and read Yiddish publications." I immediately said to the gentleman: "My dear sir, that is the best argument I can have in favor of this bill; if we cannot build up out of the growing boys and girls first-class Americans, as Roosevelt has said, what are we coming to in the future? Just to illustrate that, I want to read for your information from an editorial that appeared in a German paper published in Pittsburgh. I want to read this because it comes from the point of an American-born citizen but who happened to be brought up under wrong tutelage. It appeared on July 4, 1917 in the Volksblatt und Freiheits-Freund, and I wish you would all notice this simply because it comes from an American-born citizen, but who had been raised and tutored under German tutorage and educated under German editorials. He says: "Those who today, July 4, 1917, read the Declaration of Independence should not read it aloud, as that immortal document contains several traitorous places about our dear allies. Properly speaking, the document should be burned publicly by the hangman." Gentlemen of the House, is that the spirit that we want to build up in this country? I say that the trouble in that we are lax and that this is for legal practices here and that we want to do away with it.

I have also had furnished me from Allegheny a statement showing the financial end of this. In the county of Allegheny they have, unfortunately, a compulsory law that requires the sheriff to advertise sales in one German paper. And in the past few years, for which I have a schedule, there being one German paper there, with a small circulation, that German paper got $219,191.86 for advertising, while the English newspapers, scattered throughout that locality, got only $196,883.17 for advertising. This, gentlemen, shows what you can do under pressure, where there is a mandatory law.

Now, gentlemen, I think the whole spirit of this law is purely American. It is not aimed at any individual, nor is it aimed at the German language any more than the Yiddish, Italian, Chinese or any other paper published in a foreign language in this Commonwealth. We do not propose to build up any cliques or clans of any denomination, but to be American, all American. I hope and trust that every man in this House will feel it his duty and privilege to vote for this bill.

Mr. GOLDER. Mr. Speaker, I am usually of a very peaceful disposition and do not care to enter into a controversy of any kind. Yesterday was a day of rejoicing and celebration, and in the wee hours of the morning my colleagues and myself up in 1014 were disturbed and enchanted by a most beautiful voice singing, "Potatoes and Fishes Make Glorious Dishes." We recognized the voice of our colleague Fred Ehrhardt, and almost instantly and unconsciously I joined in the refrain. "Pop" Franklin said to me, "Benny, if you sing in the morning you will cry before night, and the way that you can break this spell is by getting into some controversy in the morning." So I rise, not only to break the spell, but sitting as I do on the so-called Democratic side of this House, to take offense at what appears to me to be not only an attack on the League of Nations, but, my friends, an attack on our brothers in the League of Nations.

Now I have never believed in forceful feeding. Of course, sometimes we will have a suffragette who is anxious to get her picture in the paper and attain some notoriety, and will do something to get put in jail, and then has to be fed forcibly. Sometimes it works, but I have never known it to work.

This bill in effect tends to feed to American citizens that which they are adopting as quickly and as rapidly and as anxiously as can be,—Americanism, American spirit, American institiutions and American ideals. Those who are in favor of the English policy towards Ireland—giving Ireland something but taking much in return—those who feel that England has the right to force her own kind of liberty down the throats of the Irish, may agree with this bill, but gentlemen, it tends to take from some people in our ranks that which we would take for ourselves.

I speak not as an ex-service man, but I do desire to speak for the men with whom I have served. There were three service men in my flying squadron who were killed, and one was an Italian who received letters from his parents in Italian. They came here and gave to him and took for themselves the best in America. America was their ideal, America was their haven. They came here and gave him what they could not get themselves, a good education, but they could not read or write the English language.

Testimonials have been offered here in behalf of this bill. I have some to offer which I believe will refute any heretofore offered. I have here the rolls of honor cut from the different newspapers,—not of any special date, but published during the last three or four days. Let me read some of the names that appear on these rolls of honor:

Bortolo Corletti,
Woyjick Sitanski,
Giuseppe Vangiere,
Samuel Cohen,
Fred Ginaaipiertio,
Joseph Sledeskin.

There are a lot of other names, some of which I cannot even read.

I have before me an article cut from one of the newspapers, headed, "Foreign-born First To Plan Loan Drive." If I may be permitted, I would like to read it:

"FOREIGN-BORN FIRST TO PLAN LOAN DRIVE

WILL GIVE DINNER TUESDAY NIGHT PREPARATORY TO LAUNCHING CAMPAIGN

Foreign-born citizens of Philadelphia will be the first to start preliminary work for the Victory Loan, to be offered in April. Announcement has been made by Cassimir Sienkiewicz, executive secretary of the foreign committee, that the resumption of active work will be signalized by a dinner at the Adelphia Hotel next Tuesday at 6.30 o'clock.

Not a resignation has been received by the foreign committee from any member of the nineteen different race committees that operated under its direction in the fourth Liberty Loan campaign. Every member has agreed to serve in the Victory Liberty Loan.

Judge Joseph Buffington, of the United States Circuit Court, will be chairman at the dinner. E. T. Stotesbury, also a member of the committee, will be present if he is in Philadelphia.

"Plans for the conduct of the Victory Loan, campaign among the people of foreign birth will be outlined at the dinner,' said Mr. Sienkiewicz yesterday. 'We who have been in touch with the various subcommittees, and through them with the hugh proportion of foreign-born citizens of Philadelphia, know that there will be no lagging in this among the foreigners.

"Probably more than native-born Americans, the people of foreign birth who have made this their adopted home are keenly aware that America has won the respect and admiration of the world by her achievements in the world war and by the unselfishness of her motives in entering it.

"This feeling has increased the spirit of patriotism. It has made the foreign-born man proud to be a citizen of the United States. He feels that the country of his adoption is the primary agency in the movement to lift the ancient burdens of his homeland.

"The Victory Loan offers a wonderful opportunity for the foreign-born to demonstrate their patriotism and their respect for America. I think it is significant that not one resignation has been received, although all the members of the subcommittee are busy men.'"

Now Mr. Speaker, these are my testimonials, testimonials that we all can see, that I have myself seen. I have been in the ranks, and although the closest I have ever been to a foreign aeroplane was examining one that had been brought down and captured, and although I have seen no actual work, I have seen men, foreign-born American citizens, go forth to war and never come back. On the snow-covered and blood-stained battlefields of France and Italy have been foreign-born men who could not speak the English language, but who were Americans nevertheless. They were Americans and they had that spirit of Americanism and American ideals when they went forth to give their lives. Two years ago, when these same men left their homes to fight and bleed and die, if necessary, this Legislature extended to these people the privilege of receiving their advertisements in a language that they could read. They are tax payers. Sometimes their lands are confiscated, and the only notice they can get of that is through the advertisement. If they cannot read English is it in accordance with the true spirit of Americanism to publish it only in English? Is it fair and square to take from these men the only means and medium that they have of learning what is becoming of their land? It is forceful feeding. The Romans did that in centuries back. They tried to force upon them their ideals and their thought and show the Christians the error of their ways by throwing them into arenas with wild beasts. And what are we doing today? The same thing, in spirit. Now my friends, let us stand here as men who would not say, "I thank God I am not as other men." Let us be fair, let us be reasonable. I haven't any doubt that this bill was offered in the spirit which hits at the very foundation of America. America was founded, America was built, cultivated by men of all lands. That is what America means; that is what the Statue of Liberty means. It means to them when they come here, "I am going to a land where I can think and act and do as I will without breaking any laws." It never hurts to extend privileges to those who come to our shores. It is weakening the foundation of American ideals to take these privileges from them. Before we try to keep others from being Americans, let us be Americans ourselves.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the sponsor of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BOLARD. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the sponsor of the bill whether the bill now on the calendar is the same bill that was reported out of the committee last week?

Mr. BOLARD. Yes, sir; as reported out and amended on second reading.

Mr. GLASS. That is not an answer to my question. I desire the gentleman from Crawford (Mr. Bolard) to answer the question directly.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will have to answer in his own way.

Mr. BOLARD. It was amended in second reading after being reported.

Mr. GLASS. Will the gentleman say that this is the bill on second reading now, the identical bill reported last week.

Mr. BOLARD. It was amended by adding the word "only."

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Crawford (Mr. Bolard).

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will, proceed.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Speaker, did the gentleman from Crawford consult any member of the Judiciary Local Committee with reference to an amendment so important as this?

Mr. BOLARD. The Judiciary Local Committee had nothing to do with this bill.

Mr. GLASS. That is all.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Speaker, and gentlemen of the House: This is a most drastic bill. If you will note, the word "only" was inserted in line 12, and that means that when a person desires to advertise a notice in any newspaper in any language other than the English language, he has not the right to do so. In other words, if a man wants to reach a certain class of persons by an advertisement the only way to reach that class of people is by having that notice published in a foreign newspaper, whether it be Yiddish, Italian or any other language. Under this act he has no right to do so.

Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I have listened very attentively to the argument of the gentleman from Crawford (Mr. Bolard), and he wants us to vote for this bill because he thinks that this is Americanism. Mr.

Speaker and gentlemen of the House, we judge people by their acts, and so we judge newspapers by what they do. There are several foreign newspapers in the City of Philadelphia that have a circulation of over one hundred thousand each. One of them is "The Jewish World," the only Jewish newspaper which is printed in Pennsylvania, and it has a circulation of over one hundred thousand.

Now Mr. Speaker, if this foreign newspaper had done anything during the war that might have been construed to be detrimental to the interests of this government, I would be the first one here to vote for the passage of this bill. But, as I said, we judge these newspapers by what they have done, and I am not going to take up the time of the House much longer, but will just ask you to be patient for a minute and listen as I read this testimonial, a letter of appreciation from the Liberty Loan Committee of the Third Federal Reserve District, Liberty Loan Committee.

"Mr. Jacob Ginsberg,
The Jewish World,
233 S. Fifth St.,
Philadelphia, Pa.

My Dear Mr. Ginsberg: It has been brought to my attention the very excellent publicity that the Jewish World is giving the Liberty Loan.

Every true American is trying to do his part in this great campaign that we are waging to raise the necessary funds to back up our army in France.

In the name of the Liberty Loan Committee, I want to thank you and your good paper for the very great aid you are giving this Committee in this campaign.

Congratulating you, believe me

Very respectively,

R. E. NORTON,
Director of Publicity,
Third Federal Reserve District."

I want to say Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, that the wife of the editor of this Jewish newspaper was the head of the Woman's Committee in South Philadelphia, working in the interest of the Third Liberty Loan. I think it is an insult to our intelligence because a man is foreign-born to say he is not an American, or even to insinuate it. If the House will be patient with me, I will read a translation of an editorial printed in this paper in Yiddish, a copy of which I hold in my hand. I think it is the best argument in refutation of the argument of the gentleman from Crawford (Mr. Bolard).

"This day"—This is the Liberty Day edition of the The Jewish World.

"This day has been designated by the President as Liberty Day. On this day more than in the past should every one become retrospective—should take himself to account and ascertain what his contribution has been to make secure that freedom which he is enjoying in this freest of all republics.

"At this time—since it has fallen to the lot of America to become not only the champion of freedom and independence of every land and every nation throughout the world—

"Now, when the entire world is steeped in a welter of blood, thanks to the autocrat whose aim it is to destroy the principles of independence and to place the world under his despotic heel—

"When the danger of the sword hangs over the mightiest of nations and imperils their progress along the lines of equality and right—

"When there is the fear of their being relegated to the darkness of the Middle Ages—

"At this time it is particularly fitting that they who are a part and parcel of the oppressed nations should ask themselves the question: When the cedars become prey to the flames, what hope is there for the moss?

"And so every Jew must take himself to account. He must decide what his duty is at this time, when the safety of democracy and the doctrine of self-determination are at stake. For that is fundamental to the future of the Jewish people.

"There is only one guarantee; we have but one form of security—to free ourselves and every one else from the Prussian beast which has brought this deluge of blood upon the world.

"This security and this guarantee is now the aim of America. The eyes of the progressive family of nations are directed at our mighty nation, which, at its very birth, proclaimed that all men are born equal, that all are entitled to equal rights, and that there be no despotism of man over men. This principle we must help realize for the entire world. There must be no sovereignty of one people over another; no subjugation of one land by its neighbor. That is the brightest page that America is now contributing to the history of the world—just as bright as the page she contributed in her Declaration of Independence. And every one who is supplying the means to overthrow Prussian autocracy is helping to write this glorious page in the history of the world—a page which will be read by our children and children's children unto the remotest generations. It will be a beacon light to brighten the path for our future.

"When our children were called upon to help in this sacred cause of world liberation, we did not hesitate. At a time when we are willing to sacrifice blood of our blood and flesh of our flesh, will we hesitate when material means are necessary to bring this war in which our youth is engaged to a successful culmination?

"The Jewish World has extended an invitation to prominent men, leading city, state and national officials, renowned jurists, public-spirited citizens and well-known journalists, editors of great and influential newspapers, requesting them to convey their message to the Jewish people on the significance of this great day.

"We did it not because we think it necessary for any one to remind us of our duty, but rather in the spirit of unity, in the sentiment of a common cause and common aims, with which all elements must be permitted in grateful appreciation, as an integral part of a common citizenship under the American flag; pledging together to do our duty in this historic moment.

"What a brilliant array of men it is who speak to us in the true spirit of Liberty, endearing to us so much more the great democracy of the United States—and illuminating the question of the day with a clear vision, impressing the imperative need of sacrificing our fortunes as well as our sons are sacrificing their lives, so that the sun of freedom may shine upon the horizon of Europe, even as it shines on this side of the ocean; so that the world shall no more know of despotic rulers such as the Hohenzollerns or the Romanoffs. Let the danger of Prussian militarism forever disappear.

"In celebrating 'Liberty Day' let us devote ourselves to making the Liberty Loan a success, not only by subscribing ourselves, but by taking, preaching and exhorting, if need be, our friends, our neighbors and our acquaintances everywhere, so that there may not be a single living person who shall not possess at least one Liberty Bond.

"Every one of us must be imbued with this spirit of the day. We must devote ourselves to the cause of humanity, so that it shall not sink to the depths of slavery. This is our duty—we shall not be found wanting."

Mr. Speaker, I think this is the best argument I can give in refutation of the argument of the gentleman from Crawford, I sincerely ask the members of this House to vote "no" on this bill.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I am personally informed about this measure. The gentleman who last spoke used the expression that it was an insult to our intelligence. Yes; it is an insult to my intelligence, and to your intelligence, for any Hungarian or Italian or German or any other class of people to come into the United States of America and dictate to us what language we shall use in the United States. We are an English-speaking people. He also referred to the sun shining on Europe. The sun shines upon English Europe, not German Europe, not Italian or Hungarian or, if you please, Jewish Europe. I know, and you know that most of the people referred to, especially the Jews of the United States, can read English language. The trend of public opinion today is to Englishify the people of the United States. We must pass measures to compel the people who come here using foreign languages to recognize our language, and not us to recognize them. It is foolish for them to expect the United States of America to stoop to them. To have an article printed in Hungarian, in Italian, in Jewish, or, if you please, in any other foreign language, would be to tear down the American fabric. Let them come to the United States; let them come to us, and use our language and learn to read our language.

One of the speakers used the word, "Americanize." That is just exactly what we are talking about; that is just what this bill wants. I want to give you an illustration. Only last September I had the pleasure—no, no pleasure—I had the contemptible task of examining my client through an interpreter; examining his daughter twelve years old, and examining another child fourteen years old through an interpreter and the county paid that interpreter five dollars a day because those children, who were born in Pennsylvania, could not speak English. This bill is not drastic; it is only the beginning, it is the baby in infancy. Why, gentlemen, we ought to pass a law to punish a man of that kind that will raise children in his own family in the United States that cannot talk English, and I told the father that. I say, there ought to be a penalty imposed upon him for having a girl of twelve and another of fourteen years of age who were born in Pennsylvania and cannot speak English and require an interpreter costing the county five dollars a day. What do we want? Name the language that you read, but we are opposed to this measure. We cannot read Yiddish.

Mr. GLASS. I will come out and read it to you.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. My friend, Mr. Glass, says, "I will come out and read it to you." I would just like to see him come up to the Allegheny Mountains and read articles to me out of papers printed in Yiddish language or in a Hungarian language or in any other foreign language. No, we are not compelled to get on our feet to them. They have come here and have asked us to adopt them and they must ask in their own language for whatever they may want.

Mr. BOLARD. Mr. Speaker, I want to ask Mr. Golder a question.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Golder, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GOLDER. Mr. Speaker, yes, sir.

Mr. BOLARD. I wish to ask you, do you mean to represent to this House that those young men in your district who are of foreign birth when they went abroad in the service were not able to read and write the English language?

Mr. GOLDER. I submitted it to you as I got it.

Mr. BOLARD. I ask you if that is the impression that you intended to give this House?

Mr. GOLDER. The gentleman from Crawford must take his own impression and you may adopt it or reject it.

Mr. BOLARD. Is it not a fact that you intended to give that impression?

Mr. GOLDER. I have to answer your question in my own way. My impression is that there is one thing which is greater than language, and that is the language of the spirit.

Mr. BOLARD. That is no answer to my question.

Mr. GOLDER. It is the language of American citizenship; it is the language of the men from my district who were in the service.

Mr. BOLARD. I wish to submit that that bunch of patriotic young men, if they did come from foreign birth, and did go from Philadelphia and were in a position to go to the public schools, could not read and write the English language. If they could not I would like to know, but if they did and they were patriotic Americans, nobody can give them more honor than I do or respect them more than I do and there is no argument on their being foreign born or the children of foreign born parents. Gentlemen, there is no argument against this bill at all. One word more in explanation: It has been stated here that this bill is presented for the purpose of stopping the publication of foreign language papers. It has nothing to do with it unless they are living on legal advertising. This bill simply strikes at one language for legal advertising. It is that class of advertising that comes with legal affairs, gives jurisdiction, gives right to sell property, makes ordinances valid, and gives the right to sell property—legal advertising only.

Mr. GOLDER. Mr. Speaker, I wish to say a word in reply to the gentleman from Crawford, Mr. Bolard. I had no intention or no desire to be abrupt or discourteous to Mr. Bolard, but at that time I could not answer his question in any other way different from the manner in which I did answer it. I have just been advised by the representative from Philadelphia to my right, that according to the newspaper dispatches the first American that was killed on the other side was a Jewish boy from his district, a boy who could neither write nor read English, and he waived any claim he may have had for exemption. What I intended saying before is this: there is one thing that is greater than mere language; is more powerful than words, and those of you who have been in the service will know that it is the spirit of the man to go forth and fight the battles of America. When they went into battle, whether they were American or Englishmen or Frenchmen or Italians, when they went on that blood-stained soil on the other side, they did not go into action as an Italian soldier or as a Jewish soldier, but those who came for America went in side by side with the others as Americans. If this were a bill that was presented to wipe out newspapers altogether that are printed in a foreign language, I would pursue another tack but in this bill the judges have the discretion, they have the right to say what legal advertisement shall be inserted in foreign newspapers and which one should be inserted in an American newspaper and when Mr. Davis speaks of "rewards and punishments," as to these men, who will gainsay that have not won the respect of the entire world, and who can say that the American soldier was this, that or the other thing? Who can distinguish? Who can say that this man who was called an American may have been an Italian or he may have been an American? There was no distinction as soon as they agreed to put on their colors as American citizens. There is nothing compulsory here that a judge must give out an advertisement if there is an advertisement given out: it is a matter of spirit, a matter of fair play. You have no right after they have delivered the goods under the colors to say that they are not fit, that they are not Americans; to say, "you are trying to adapt yourself to be Americans, but you are not deserving of your own publications." It is that language of fair play and spirit that I am after, in the spirit of fair play and brotherhood: fair play and a larger American spirit.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Glass.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Glass, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Speaker, yes, sir.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I would like to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Glass, what percentage of the people living in the first legislative district of Philadelphia are unable to speak or write the English language?

Mr. GLASS. I can answer the gentleman from Tioga by saying that at least fifty per cent of the people living in the first legislative district, in South Philadelphia, are Jewish people and while every Jewish child living in my legislative district is brought up in the Public schools of Philadelphia and are all true Americans and are taught English in many cases, their parents are unable to read and write the English language. I don't know just exactly what the per cent is, but it is large.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I desire further to interrogate the gentleman and ask in what language the ballots are printed in his legislative district?

Mr. GLASS. In the English language.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I want to ask the gentleman about the voters in that district who are unable to read English and unable to read their ballots, how can they cast an intelligent ballot?

Mr. Glass. The law provides that where a man is unable to mark his ballot he has the right to ask for assistance, to ask any elector to help him prepare his ballot and those gentlemen who cannot read their own ballots have this privilege.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I would like to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia if that law provides this assistance for both the primary and general election?

Mr. GLASS. I want to say in this way, further, in answer to my friend from Tioga, the Jewish newspapers, especially one, the one from which I read the editorial a few moments ago, prints the names of the candidates prior to the primary election so that the voters may be able to read them and so that they may intelligently vote when they came to the polls.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Speaker, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The SPEAKER. The roll will be verified.

The roll was verified as follows:

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. BIGLER. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to the passage of this bill. It seems to me that there is something very strange that has taken hold of us here in this respect. Everybody wants to raise salaries. I think we might term it "salaryitis" that has taken possession of us here. I am sure, as far as I am concerned, I have my hat off and my bow is made to the judges of the State of Pennsylvania. It always has been and I expect it always to be off, but it seems to me that this is a very inopportune time to commence talking about raising the salary of judges. There might be some pertinent questions asked in regard to this matter. Would we get a better brand of justice if we raised the salaries of judges? Would we get better judges if we raised their salaries? Would we get better service if we raised their salaries? Gentlemen of the House, I ask you to answer these questions.

Now, there is something else that seems to me it is time to talk about, and that is the raising of the salaries of the forty-five thousand teachers in the State of Pennsylvania. When are we going to do that? We have delayed this matter. We have been doing the teachers a great wrong by not raising their salaries long age, and yet we stand around here and put the teachers off until everything else is raised. Gentlemen, it is wrong, and I ask you as thinking men and as patriotic men to defer this matter at the present time and vote this bill down, which it deserves, until our teachers are taken care of, until our good roads are taken care of. Now is the time for us to stand up and be men and later on, when we get the money in the treasury, we may be able to reconsider this matter of judges salaries. Gentlemen, I hope the bill will be voted down.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House: I am somewhat suprised to find that I am obliged to make a speech in defense of a bill as meritorious as this bill, especially after we have placed on our statute books an act which is considered a disgrace to this Commonwealth, an act known as the "judges pension act," in which we admit that we do not pay our judges while they are working for us a sufficient sum that after they have given us the best of their life and given us the best they have for twenty years and arrived at the age of sixty-five years, that we are going to make them a ward of the State, a semi-pauper, if you please. I say, if for no other purpose, we should raise the dignity of our courts, and should take them out of any question of suspicion and give them such a salary that no suspicion arise. I know of instances, and everyone in this House knows of instances, when a man with a $15,000.00 or $20,000.00 practice has taken the office of the judge of the courts at $7,00.00, $8,000.00 or $8,500.00. Immediately you hear the question asked: "What is there in it in addition to the salary?" I say, if for no other purpose, we should raise that salary so that this unjust suspicion should not be raised against the courts.

Now, gentlemen, another question: This has been worked out to a table so that it equalizes the county districts with the districts of Allegheny and Philadelphia. Perhaps in the district that the honorable gentleman from Mercer (Mr. Bigler) comes from they are not as busy as they are in eastern part of this State. Our judges in Delaware county work from the third Monday in September until the second Monday in July, including Saturday's until 2:00 or 3:00 o'clock. These two men are worked continuously, and therefore either one of them does as much work as any judge either in Allegheny or Philadelphia. I say, therefore, in order to put the country districts on the same par, in the same line with the city districts who are now getting at the present time $11,000.00, this bill should be passed, and I ask you, gentlemen, in fair play, honorable to your men, honorable to your courts, that you vote "aye" on this bill.

Mr. HORNE. Mr. Speaker, judges' bills are old bills, and have been considered for generations. As far back as Biblical times judges were given absolute sway, and when they were given all the power that they wanted, they usurped it in such a manner as to cause their own downfall. There is no question but that the judges have a very prominent place with us. There is danger, however, in making them believe, like the judges of old, that they have absolute power and are an autocracy unto themselves,—that they shall sway and dominate all who live,—and that danger, I believe, is fostered by this bill.

I think there is no question but that there is a lurking belief in the hearts of the American people today that the courts are not what they should be,—not exactly what they should be—and a suspicion that the court is not given that honor which is due it. That is largely fostered by making the judges salary so large that the people are prejudiced against it. The judges of the State of Pennsylvania are well paid as compared with other judges. Their salaries are large as compared with the salaries of the judges of the District Courts of the United States, who get six thousand dollars per year, and the Supreme Court of the United States, the judges of which do not get nearly so much as is proposed here. It seems that men come to this legislature session after session wishing to boost the salaries for some unknown reason. Is it possible that you do not have proper candidates to run for these offices in your counties? Is it possible that you cannot secure good timber for the judgeships without boosting the salary far beyond the salaries paid in other states and in the United States? Is it possible that the timber in Pennsylvania is so much better than that for the Supreme Court of United States and for the District Courts of the United States?

I do not believe that they are better.

On the contrary we are building up by this bill a political system of men running for the judgships because of the large salary, and not because of the honor, not because of the appreciation of the honor of being placed there.

But, gentlemen, there is another side to this question. Just now the State of Pennsylvania is concerned with very grave questions, more grave than the raising of the salaries of the judges. These questions are produced by a great crisis. We have in Pennsylvania many widows and orphans, caused by the great war and also by a great epidemic which struck this State. So far this legislature has taken no advanced ground looking to a constructive measure for these people, and why should we give attention to a few judges in the State of Pennsylvania as against these men and women who compose the society to pay these bills. Why should we call back our soldiers and have them walk the streets without a job, after having received only thirty dollars a month and only having a few cents in their pockets upon their discharge, and then ask them to pay these increased salaries to these judges. They are the men who will have to pay it, and the widows and orphans caused by this epidemic and war will have to dig down into their pockets and pay these salaries. Do you not believe that in all fairness and justice that they should be protected?

It seems to me that this measure is prepared with a wish to cater to the judges. Do you men come here and vote for this bill because you are fearful of what these judges will do to you if you do not? Are they strong enough to solicit your vote or force it? If the judges should force you to vote for this measure they are not worthy of your vote. I believe we can only vote on this measure in one way, and that is to vote it down absolutely. The raise asked for them here is inconsistent and unfair to every other man. Some men have left the impression or have given the argument that the salary is not sufficient to tempt the best lawyers in the State to assume these positions. That may be true and it may not be true. You will have to judge that from the standpoint of conditions prevailing in your own county. Now I think that we have plenty of candidates for judgeships in the counties of this State, men of worth and men of education. I very much fear if we pass this bill that the candidates for the positions will be seeking these large salaries, the men will be looking to the salary rather than to the honor attached to the position.

I urge the men of this House to consider the widows and orphans and the soldiers of Pennsylvnia as against these people. Up on the hillsides and in the valleys of our State are men and women owning small houses, holding down small positions whose salaries are an asset to the State of Pennsylvania. They may make a bare living, but they will have to dig down into their jeans and pay the salaries of these judges, so that they might live in luxury and lavishly, as compared with the living conditions of these people. We are all born equal, and all people like some pleasure and some advantages, but I believe that this bill is absolutely unfair to your population in Pennsylvania and to the people generally.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria (Mr. Horne).

The SPEAKER: Will the gentleman from Cambria (Mr. Horne) permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HORNE. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. Mr Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman how many weeks he spent in the courts of Cambria County while they were in session in 1918.

Mr. HORNE. I think only one week.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. One week?

Mr. HORNE. I think so.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. Did you spend a week in that Court House?

Mr. HORNE. Not a whole week.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. How long were you there?

Mr. HORNE. I was there a very short time.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. What do you mean by a very short time?

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. Was that the time you attended a committee meeting to select a chairman for the county committee?

Mr. HORNE. No that was not the time.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. Were you there in court when the court was in session in 1918?

Mr. HORNE. Yes, sir, I was.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. Do you know anything about the workings of the court in Cambria County?

Mr. HORNE. Well, now, you may not agree with me in that; but I believe I do.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. You believe you do?

Mr. HORNE. Yes, sir.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. How long did it take you to learn this in 1918 while the court was in session?

Mr. HORNE. Well, I don't come here as a lawyer, and therefore cannot answer the question. I am not a practitioner at the bar, and am not familiar with court proceedings.

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I have always found that when you want to learn something about a matter it is better to ask someone who doesn't know a thing about it, and he will tell you all about it. That seems to be the theory of the old grannies. Any man who opposes this measure will never be able to measure up to the requirements of a judge, nor does he know what a judge sacrifices when he ascends the bench. I have heard men while sitting in the bar association meeting, while sitting in the attorney's room smoking their cigars, say they would not accept the judgeship if it were handed them on a silver platter. Why? Because a man would have to sacrifice, for the paltry sum of seven or eight thousand dollars, to keep himself and family and lay up for the future, an earning that comes to him in fees annually of two or three times that amount. I want to tell you right here that you cannot always get the best man to take that position, for the simple reason, no only that he is giving up a practice worth two or three times what the judgeship is worth, but to give up privileges I would not sacrifice for all the judgeships in Pennsylvania.

I want to tell you, gentlemen, I am not the only member of the bar of Cambria County who has the same opinion, and that is so in half the counties of Pennsylvania. You must mingle with those people, you must know something about them in addition to spending one hour in the courthouse selecting a county chairman, before you can condemn them. You do not have the best men at all times in your county on the bench. They cannot afford it. I have known, and you have known, men who were elected and elevated to the bench who resigned because they could not keep themselves and their families and lay up for the days to come, and the years to come, and could not support themselves. Ten thousand dollars! Yes, ten thousand dollars. How many lawyers in your county are making more than ten thousand dollars? And how many of them will not accept the judgeship? We simply feel that we in the country districts should be on a par with the large counties, and ask our sister counties of Philadelphia and Allegheny to go along with us. You don't want any discrimination. We don't. Many of the judges tell you they could not live on twelve thousand dollars a year, and there are others of the same kind throughout the State and nation. Ten thousand dollars! Why, I have known a man to be elected judge for the sake of the name, and he resigned to go back to a practice of sixteen thousand dollars so that he would be able to provide for the future. I hope you will not pass this measure.

Mr. HORNE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. HORNE. Did you state in your remarks that you would not take a judgeship if it were handed you on a silver platter?

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. I will answer that by saying that I have not consulted my constituents and cannot say. Mr. Speaker, I was asked that question one time when I was initiated and gave the same answer—I was blind-folded at that time.

Mr. HORNE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to further interrogate the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman allow himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. Yes, Mr. Speaker; with pleasure.

Mr. HORNE. Would the gentleman be open for such a position if it were provided in the proposed bill that Cambria County should have a new judge?

Mr. WILLIAM DAVIS. If there should be such a bill passed, and I felt inclined to be a candidate, I would claim that privilege, provided the people would say, "Come on." But we do not know what the people will say until that time comes.

Mr. HORNE. I would like to say that I did not mean to be personal, since the gentleman has deemed it advisable to take me seriously, because my remarks were not intended personally for my opponent, or rather my colleague, as he comes from Cambria County.

Mr. ROBERT L. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House: I am opposed to this bill. I did not intend to speak, but since the gentleman from Cambria (Mr. William Davis) stated that any man who opposed this bill would never measure up to the judgeship, I wish to say that I am a lawyer. I admit it. So I am about to attack my own measure now. I am going to vote against this bill. It is a serious proposition, and it is of importance to other parts of this Commonwealth as well as the County of Cambria. When, my friends, has it become improper for a school teacher or school teachers, if you please, to voice the sentiments of the people on any matter of legislation that comes before this House? Are you going to leave it to us lawyers to determine the compensation that we will get, or are you going to have them say what you will pay lawyers and pay judges in this Commonwealth? Don't you know, my friends, that there are more half-starved lawyers in the State of Pennsylvania than any other class of people? I will admit that they need the money and would like to have it, and that is what we are all after, whether we be lawyers or school teachers. But who is going to fix the salary? It is for this whole House, laymen as well as lawyers. Who is demanding the passage of this bill? I have no doubt every judge in this State would like to have his salary increased; so would you, no matter what your business is. But that is no reason why we should raise them at this particular time, and I say, without fear of successful contradiction, that the judges are the best paid public servants in this Commonwealth.

I think there can be no question about that statement. I know of many lawyers, my friends, who are making much bigger compensation than the judges. Of course that is true. This is an age of specialties. The man who specializes in the law ordinarily earns the biggest compensation. A criminal lawyer who is successful and is well learned in that particular branch of the law, can earn more money, perhaps, than any judge in this state. The great corporation lawyer whose practice along that particular line is big and wonderful, earns princely fees, but, gentlemen, you would not for a moment say that any lawyer who is a specialist in only one line would make an ideal judge to preside over our courts and to administer all the laws of the Commonwealth. Gentlemen, you know perhaps that we have more judges in the state of Pennsylvania alone than there are in all England. You know that we now pay our judges such a salary that keeps them on the bench. Who ever heard of a judge resigning? It is almost unheard of. Did you ever see more spirited campaigns for elections to public office than are conducted by and in behalf of candidates for judges in this Commonwealth? Gentlemen, they are after the job and when they get it they sit tight and hold that job down. Now, I will agree with my colleague from Mercer County, that the time may come when this state can well afford to increase the compensation of our judges. I am not opposed to judges getting bigger salaries, as a general proposition; I am not opposed to the raising of salaries of all our public officials when they need it and when we are in shape to give them that raise. But, gentlemen, the people of this Commonwealth are clamoring right now for improvements, for good roads. We must, as members of this House, do everything in our power to raise this grand old Keystone State out of the mud. We must do something, gentlemen, to pay living wages to the school teachers of this Commonwealth. There are many things that need our immediate attention, and now, of all times, is not the time to raise the salaries of the judges of this state. Men are ambitious for this office; men are being candidates for this office whenever the election comes about, knowing that they will sacrifice in a financial way, but, gentlemen, money—salary—is not the only thing in life. There is not a lawyer in this Commonwealth who is proud of his profession, that is proud of the ideals of the profession, whose life ambition is not to be a judge. Gentlemen, there are higher things in connection with the great office of judge than merely the amount of money that they get out of it. Every honest lawyer is in his own heart an aspirant for judicial honors. He will make financial sacrifices in order to obtain the aim of his ambition. Men, when they arrive at middle age or past middle age, are perfectly willing to retire from the active practice of law and go on the bench at much less compensation than they were able to earn in the practice of their profession. Now gentlemen, are the lawyers in your county demanding of you that you raise the salaries of our judges at this time? They are not in my county. Are the judges in your county insisting that you raise their salaries? I don't believe they are. Who is it that comes into this House at this particular time and demands that we raise the salaries of these judges? I don't know. My friends, now is the time when we must conserve; now is the time, when we are right in the midst of the after-war conditions, when prices have already commenced to tumble, when wages are being cut from day to day, and when incomes are on the decrease and not on the increase, and now is not the time for us to raise these salaries. Let us remember the things that need our immediate attention. This is not one of them. Let us ask ourselves this question: who is demanding this? Is this a most worthy thing that we have now confronting us in which we are asked to spend the money of this Commonwealth? For my part, I can answer both these questions in the negative and I must vote against this bill, notwithstanding the fact that I forevermore eliminate myself from judicial honors.

Mr. PALMER. Mr. Speaker, I did not expect to enter into this debate, but when I heard the gentleman from Lawrence say that there are more half-starved lawyers in Pennsylvania than there are in any other profession or business or vocation, I thought it was proper for me to attempt to straighten out that record. I don't believe that there is one half-starved lawyer in Pennsylvania; those who are half-starved lawyers are members of the bar, but they have never attained to the right of being called lawyers. One phase of this proposition has not been touched upon. In the smaller counties of this Commonwealth some of the judges receive the sum of six thousand dollars a year, and out of that they pay their own stenographers and thier own assistants in the writing of their opinions, reducing their salaries to less than five thousand dollars a year. If the judges in Philadelphia and Allegheny Counties receive a greater sum, it is because they have a greater amount to do and it is made by giving them more judges. After all, equality is justice and they are trying to raise these [illegible] place near the remuneration received by the judges sitting in the large cities. I realize that it is always a popular move to be against the raising of salaries and it has always been more or less popular to be outspoken against a court. That is always when they are right, but to allow any personal influence to guide you in the matter is all wrong. To say that the judges should not receive ten thousand dollars or should not be raised at all should be decided upon the question of whether or not they are worthy of it or whether or not the service is rendered. I have no doubt that what the gentleman from Lawrence says is true, that every lawyer expects or hopes some day to attain to this high seat of honor and that he also feels that if the salary is kept low enough, that opposition will be decreased and that his hope may be realized, but after all I hope that he reaches some day to that high seat and I want to see him get sufficient remuneration suitable for a man of his marked ability. First of all, the consideration of country judges should be taken into account. They are just as capable, just as sincere and just as studious as the judges elsewhere, and their salaries should be raised. We have gone through in former Legislatures and picked out the judges in certain populated districts and gave them a very marked increase, but not so with the country judges, because it seems that there is not sufficient legislative support behind it to influence this result. There should be an equitable adjustment of the whole proposition. I believe that the bill before us, this bill, gives that adjustment.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken.

Mr. BIGLER. Mr. Speaker, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman insist on the verification?

Mr. BIGLER. Mr. Speaker, we insist.

The SPEAKER. The roll will be verified.

Mr. STADTLANDER. Mr. Speaker, on a point of special privilege I would like to interrogate the gentleman what he means by saying "we insist" upon the verification of the roll.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Mercer (Mr. Bigler) permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BIGLER. I will, Mr. Speaker. The gentleman has answered his own question.

The roll was verified as follows:

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. MARSHALL. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House: It is not my intention at this time, or at any other time in this session, to oppose any legislation brought before this House which I consider meritorious or deserving of my support; but having read this bill carefully and digested it, as I believe I have, I think it would be an improper thing at this time to let this bill go to a vote of the House without having been discussed and the attention of the members of this House called to its provisions. This bill provides, as you will note, that in any case where a judge has been elected to the office, and for any reason he becomes incapable of handling that office, either because of sickness or mental disability, the Governor of this Commonwealth can so notify him and ask him to resign. If he complies within thirty days, he can be made, as it were, a member ex officio of that court, and a new member, or a new judge, appointed to take his place, and during the remainder of his term, serving in this capacity as a member ex officio, he will receive his full salary. I can see, gentlemen, how this provision can be used in a way to work a very great injustice. I would not for a minute insinuate or infer that the Governor of this Commonwealth would be a party to any appointment that would not be proper; but I can see how members of a political party can take advantage of a condition of this kind to have a man who may be their friend make such a move to be relieved from his position and another friend appointed to fill that position.

This morning we had a discussion before this House on another measure providing for an increase of salary, and one of the worthy members at that time referred to the wave of sentiment passing over this House which might be called salaryitis. I feel when we come to consider this bill we are still suffering from that same thing. I am sorry to say that during the past few days I have had men come to me in traveling to and from my home, and in my home county refer to the trend of legislation in this House at the present time continuing to increase salaries and providing pensions for men who have been or are holding positions in this State. I am perfectly willing that every man who serves our Commonwealth shall receive full compensation; but our judges are not paupers. We just this last session, in the early part of this day, passed a bill increasing the salaries of the judges who are referred to in this bill, and who would be taken care of by its provisions. I say our judges are not paupers. I am very anxious to see that they are well taken care of in their salaries; but the provisions of this bill detract from the dignity of the office of judge in this Commonwealth, which holds him up to the people, as it were, who look upon the judges as men who have not been taken care of. I say it detracts from the dignity of the judges, from the people who elected them, and I say also the judges should be paid an adequate salary. These salaries have been provided, and I think that in justice to the people and with due respect to the judges this bill should not be passed.

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. BUCHER. Mr. Speaker, I move that further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 813, entitled

An Act to validate the official acts of certain persons acting as deputy notaries public

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, this bill provides where a notary public has entered into military service of the nation and has appointed a deputy, and that deputy has performed certain acts as notary public, under this bill the acts of that supposed deputy would be legalized. Along about the time of the Civil War an act was passed by this legislature which provided when a man went into the military service of the United States he could appoint a deputy to serve in his stead during the time he was in that service. That act was repealed in 1917. Evidently in the county from which the sponsor of this bill comes some notary public has entered the military service and appointed a deputy, thinking he had authority to do so; as a matter of fact, he had no authority. If this bill were to pass the House and Senate in its present shape it would have to be vetoed by the Governor for the reason that it is clearly unconstitutional. It would attempt to breathe the breath of life into something that does not exist and that would have no legal sanding in the beginning and therefore it would have to be vetoed by the governor. I don't see the sponsor of the bill in the House and there is possibly some condition in his county that needs to be remedied and it may be that some change may be made to adjust that

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, I move that further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. CHARLES A. SHAFFER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The next three bills, House Bills Nos. 623, 871 and 726, are not on files and will be passed over for the present.

Legislative Journal.

Session 1919 — 123rd of the General Assembly

Vol. 5. HARRISBURG, PA., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 19, 1919. No. 27.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, March 19, 1919.

The House met at 10:30 o'clock A. M.
The SPEAKER (Robert S. Spangler) in the Chair.

PRAYER.

The Chaplain, Rev. W. H. Feldmann, offered the following prayer:

O Thou God of law and of right, who didst first send forth in thunder tones from the rugged heights of Sinai, Thine own inviolable will, grant, we pray Thee, that we may ever hold before us as model and guide those truths which Thou hast given unto us and which dare not be broken with impunity. Grant unto us, we pray Thee, that in all of our doings we may look unto Thee, Thou who hast given us truth and justice as it cannot be found elsewhere, and may never violent hands be laid upon Thine own great code. Help us, if ever prompted for greed or glory, to turn away therefrom, to remember the melancholy marks of history where they who have defied Thee have fallen by the way; and may these lawmakers humbly bow before Thee, the great Lawmaker, and have their wills at all times brought in submission and harmony to Thy divine will. Amen.
